

BUENA VISTA MAN DEAD

John Corcoran, Who Had Spent a Couple of Weeks in This City, Suddenly Expires at South Side.

John Corcoran, an aged bachelor whose home had been in the town of Buena Vista for over forty years and who was about 65 years of age, dropped to the walk as he was about to enter P. J. Bresnahan's saloon, at the South Side, Tuesday morning. Assistance was quickly on hand, Dr. Smiley being summoned and a hack was secured, but Mr. Corcoran expired before he could be removed to the Portage House, on South Second street, where Mr. Corcoran had been stopping for about two weeks. Death was due to bronchial and heart trouble, with which he had long suffered.

When the body had been removed to the Boston undertaking rooms about $200 in cash was found in his pockets, and he had recently deposited $3,000 at the First National bank, the proceeds of the sale of his farm, which he sold to Geo. Turrish. He also held a mortgage on property in Buena Vista.

Before moving to Buena Vista the Corcoran home was for a number of years on the Jordan road, just beyond the city limits, across the highway from the Eichorst milk farm, the house still standing in its original location. Both parents and two sisters died in Buena Vista, and two brothers, Jerre and Cornelius, also passed away, the latter committing suicide while deranged a couple of years ago. The only near relatives are the widow and daughter of the latter, who when last heard from were residents of Trinidad, Colorado, and a nephew, John Dugman, a young man who spent several months here about one year ago and is now supposed to be somewhere in the northern part of the state.

The deceased was a man of temperate habits, thoroughly honest and upright and it is supposed that he was about to pay a small debt he owed Mr. Bresnahan, when the fatal shock occurred.

The remains will be taken to Buena Vista Friday morning, funeral services to be conducted by Father Meagher in the Catholic church in the town of Almond at 10 o'clock, followed by interment in the adjoining cemetery beside those who have gone before.

Equalized Adams County.

John Porter has returned from Adams county, where he devoted five weeks to making an estimate of property values. Mr. Porter and three other gentlemen from adjoining counties were appointed by the state tax commission to re-adjust the values of real estate and personal property in that county. Contrary to the usual custom by commissions of this character, the quartette did not travel together, but each took a different route at the starting point and made his estimates independently of the others. When the four had visited all parts of the county their figures were forwarded to Madison for compilation by the state body.

Marriage Licenses.

Rasmussen, Alban, to Rose E. Sether, Rosbald. William Putz to Clara Zawacki, both of Belmont. Alex. Richard, Grand Rapids, to Gertrude Gostammy, Flover. Frank Steele Carver, St. Joseph, Mo., to Clara Rosenow, Stevens Point.

STEVENS POINT NORMAL

Personal and Other Notes Gathered by The Gazette's Special Correspondent.

Russell Moen was about school on Monday.

Joe Monian came down from Wausau on Monday for a visit.

Herbert Steiner '16 of Baldwin spent Saturday in the city visiting friends.

Prof. Cavens attended the Northwestern Teachers' association at Eau Claire last week.

Prof. Hyer goes to Montello to conduct a teachers' institute on Friday and Saturday of this week.

Lawrence Hill and Inez Fulton, who are teaching at Athens, spent the latter part of last week at home.

Garry Culver, who lately returned from the west, will enter school at the beginning of the second quarter.

Pres. Sims has been quite seriously ill with rheumatism but is so much improved now as to be able to attend to his duties at school.

Miss Leigh, a graduate of the University of Michigan, at present filling Miss Lura A. Burce's position, gave a talk on Tuesday afternoon on the "Advantages of a College Education," which proved very interesting and instructive.

On Friday evening of last week the Junior class gave their annual reception to the class and faculty of the school. Streamers of red and white crepe paper were draped from the balcony of the gymnasium to the center of the room, directly underneath which were arranged several pieces of stately partly screened by foliage plants. At one end of the room was a large banner bearing the word "Junior," at the other end was another large banner bearing "1912." Con- tests and games occupied the time until refreshments were served, after which the time was spent in dancing.

Funeral of Old Friend.

Pres. John F. Sims, of the Stevens Point Normal, spent Monday at Wausau, where he was one of the active pallbearers at the funeral of J. P. Briggs. Mr. Briggs was a veteran school teacher in Manitowoc county, an instructor to Mr. Sims when the latter was a boy, and later he taught in the schools of Wausau and was superintendent of Marathon county. Mr. Sims also lived at the Briggs home at Manitowoc for a year or more, and always retained the most kindly feeling for his tutor and all members of the family.

Substantial School Building.

Miss Mary Van Hecke is employed as teacher in the new school just built by district No. 7, town of Hull, and as soon as the fall farm work is completed she expects to have an enrollment of between 30 and 40. The new building is of solid brick, 33x38 feet in dimensions, and cost about $2,000. Frank Glinski, treasurer of No. 7, superintended the construction work, and maintains that there is not a better district school in the county. It is located about eighty rods beyond the city limits on N. Second street.

Miss Donaldson to Wed.

Miss Barbara Donaldson, a former operator of The Gazette's typesetting machine, but who left here for the west about four years ago and until recently had been employed in a printing office at Rigby, Idaho, will be married at Idaho Falls, Idaho, about the 10th of next month to Raymond Crabtree, a prosperous young contractor and builder at the Falls. Mr. Crabtree is undoubtedly an industrious gentleman, and during the winter months he fills the position of head salesman for a leading dry goods store in that city. Miss Donaldson's many friends at the old home in Stevens Point will wish her a long and happy wedded life. Immediately after their marriage they will go to housekeeping in a new home now being equipped by the groom-to-be.

Delegates to Federation.

Mrs. C. B. Baker, Mrs. C. F. Raymond, Mrs. W. W. Mitchell, Mrs. John R. Brinker and Mrs. N. A. Week were elected by the local Woman's Club as delegates to the state federation to be held at Oshkosh Thursday and Friday of this week. The alternates chosen last Saturday were Mesdames E. W. Sellers, C. D. McFarland, W. B. Buckingham, John W. Glennon and Miss Katharine Rood.

Home Economics was the general topic for Saturday's meeting of the Club, the program being in charge of Mrs. D. J. Leahy, who made a very interesting talk on household matters. Mrs. Brinker was assigned the subject, "Some Essentials of the Home," which she discussed very elucidly. Mrs. W. F. Atwell read an instructive paper on "Co-operative Home Keeping," Mrs. W. F. Fisher told many good things about "The Up-to-date Kitchen," and Mrs. J. W. Stroppe dispensed much valuable information under the title of her paper, "How to Keep Warm Between Seasons."

A vocal solo was charmingly rendered by Miss Menaul of the Normal faculty and Misses Blanche Hill and Rosetta Johnson gave an artistic piano duet. A character sketch by Mrs. F. M. Playman, "Mrs. Mulligan's Recipe," was so vigorously applauded that Mrs. Playman responded with "Maud Muller's Settin' Hen."

Fell Fifteen Feet.

Frank Groscheck, who resides at 1311 Clark street, while at work in the stone quarry on the West Side, Monday morning, fell a distance of about 15 feet, due to an unexpected cave in of a ledge of loose soil. Groscheck, who stood on a ladder and was about to descend to the bottom, was being assisted by another man in the work. As he started down the ledge gave way, throwing him to the bottom and falling across his body. He struck upon his face and hands and was considerably bruised, but no bones broken. His breath, however, was knocked out and it was some time before he recovered in this respect, but his injuries are only temporary.

Big Building Being Improved.

The Anders-Van Hecke Co. offices and machinery warehouse, a building 40x100 feet in dimensions, has been turned quarter way around so that it is now parallel with the slough near the N. Second street bridge. A stone foundation is being built the entire length of the structure on the north side and stone piers will be placed along the other side and ends. A lean-to or shed will also be constructed at the north and a driveway laid out on the south side. The office portion of the building will be remodeled and a new front put in. This property is owned by Adolph Hoeffer, now of Milwaukee.

Aged Father Dies.

Mrs. John Russell, who lives a few miles northwest of this city, returned last week from Neenah, where she was called by the sudden death of her father, Henry Baer, one of the pioneer farmers near that town. He died on Thursday, Oct. 13th, and was buried the following Saturday. Mr. Baer was 87 years of age and had been a resident of Winnebago county for over sixty years. The surviving members of his family are the widow and the following sons and daughters: Mrs. Louis Christianson of Withee, Emil Baer of Green Bay, Reinhold and Albert of Winnebago, Herman who is at home, Henry of Winnebago and Mrs. Russell. While attending the funeral the aged widow suffered a stroke of paralysis and at last accounts her condition was very alarming.

MRS. J. J. FERRELL DEAD

Popular Lady Resident of This City Passes Away After Short Illness—Funeral Thursday Afternoon.

Mrs. Ferrell, wife of John J. Ferrell, passed away at the family home, 210 Center street, at 8:20 o'clock Tuesday morning, the termination of an illness of four weeks, due to a complete nervous collapse. While Mrs. Ferrell had not been in the best of health for some time previously, she was able to be about, look after her household duties and mingle with friends, among whom she was ever popular.

Georgiana Whiting Morse was born in Amsterdam, N. Y., and was a graduate of a seminary for young ladies at Fitchburg, Mass. About fifty years ago she was married to Mr. Ferrell at Devereaux, N. Y., and for some time thereafter they resided at Little Falls, in that state, removing to Chicago in the early 60's. Mr. Ferrell was engaged in business in the latter city for a number of years and in the fire of 1871 was one of the heavy losers. Immediately thereafter they moved to Utah, but in 1902 returned from the west and located at Escanaba, Mich., where Mr. Ferrell also engaged in business but sold out four years later, when Mr. and Mrs. Ferrell came to Stevens Point to live with their son, Fred M. Ferrell.

The deceased was a most estimable lady, of a gentle, kindly nature, one who loved to do good to others, and who ever took a deep interest in the welfare of her friends and the community. Her long life was well spent and the world is better for her having lived. Besides her husband and son, she is survived by a brother, Louis K. Morse, who is connected with the Chicago Record-Herald, a sister, Mrs. Jas. S. Packard, of Portland, Ore., and a granddaughter, Florence Ferrell, who lives with an aunt, Mrs. J. H. Monteath, at Tonopah, Nev.

The funeral will be held from the residence at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Rev. John A. Stemen officiating, followed by interment in Forest cemetery, beside her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Fred M. Ferrell, who passed away about two years ago. Relatives from outside who will attend are Mr. Morse and Byron Ferrell, of Chicago, and Mrs. Mary E. Shafer, of Geneseo, Ill., the latter two being a brother and sister of Mr. Ferrell.

A Thieving Tramp.

A tramp entered the residence of Wm. Loos, east of the Plover river, last Thursday, during the temporary absence of the family, who were at work in the field, and secured $4.75 in cash. A little son of Mr. Loos returned in time to see the fellow ransacking bureau and dressers, but before an alarm could be given the thief took to his heels and disappeared.

Doing Well in West.

Fred Puaria, of Bowman, N. D., arrived in the city last week to spend some time among relatives and friends in the county, and may conclude to remain until spring. Mr. Puaria represented the Standard Oil Co. at Bowman, which business he disposed of to Ray Leary, his brother-in-law, who recently went west from here, and also ran a dray line that he sold to good advantage, but continues to retain excellent farming property.

Wreck in Local Yards.

There was a freight wreck in the local Soo yards last Sunday afternoon, and although the mishap called together a large crowd of people who happened to be in that portion of the city, no one was hurt and comparatively little damage done. While the yard crew was switching a box car loaded with lumber, a draft iron broke and fell on one of the rails, throwing the car off the track and plowing up the ground for a distance of 20 feet or more. It took about a half hour's hard work to get the heavily loaded car back onto the track.

BEHRENDT-HAERTEL

Stevens Point Young Man Secures Charming Bride at Amherst—Will Reside Here.

Allan C. Behrendt, of this city, and Miss Phoebe May Haertel, of Amherst, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Haertel, at 8 o'clock last Thursday evening, Rev. Webster Miller, of Waupaca, officiating. There were no attendants, and the ceremony was witnessed by the respective families and a few intimate friends of the young people only. An elaborate dinner followed, and was served by young lady friends of the bride, the rooms being neatly decorated for the event. Those present from here were Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Behrendt and daughter, Elsie, parents and sister of the groom, and Willis Langenberg, a cousin, who went down by auto and returned with the bride and groom, who left that night on the velvet special to spend a week at Fond du Lac. They will be at home at 449 Water street, which home is ready for their reception.

The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Behrendt, and is a bright, congenial young man. Since leaving school he has been employed as clerk and bookkeeper in his father's grocery, and is popular with all who know him. Although the bride has always lived at Amherst, she is no stranger in Stevens Point, having visited here frequently, and has many friends who will be pleased to have her become "one of us," she being a most estimable young lady.

GONE TO HIS LONG REST

Rev. L. G. Carr, Former Pastor of Baptist Church, Dies at Fond du Lac and Buried in Stevens Point.

Rev. L. G. Carr, a former pastor of the Baptist church in this city, and one of the most popular and prominent clergymen in the state, passed away at his home in Fond du Lac, last Wednesday evening after a lingering illness caused by a complication of diseases, and the announcement, while not unexpected, was received here with sorrow by many friends.

The deceased gentleman was born at Madison, Ohio, June 30, 1843, and he came to Wisconsin with his parents in 1847. Mr. Carr was a graduate of the Baptist Theological Seminary in Chicago, and also took up college work for a time in that institution. During the civil war he served for three years and three months with Co. B, 12th Wis. infantry, and during the ten years he resided in Stevens Point was a member and chaplain of the local G. A. R. Post. He left here to accept the position of assistant superintendent of the Children's Home Society of Wisconsin, and made frequent visits here prior to a few months ago. He was a gentleman who was deeply beloved for his broad christian spirit and ever kindly, courteous disposition, traits that predominated at all times. He is survived by his widow and one son, Challis Carr, who is an electrical engineer in the employ of the government on the Panama canal.

The remains were brought here on the 12:50 train Friday afternoon, accompanied by L. A. Carr, a brother of the deceased, Rev. J. P. Dysart and D. A. Richardson of Milwaukee, Rev. Dr. Hulbert of Waupaca, L. G. Catchpole of Janesville, F. C. Brayton and Miss Dawson of Appleton, and Miss Braid of Eau Claire. Services were held at the Baptist church at 1:30 and were conducted by Revs. Dysart, Fuller and Catchpole. Feeling tributes to the memory of the deceased were paid by Revs. Hulbert, John A. Stemen of this city and Dysart, and the choir rendered appropriate hymns. Interment followed in Forest cemetery, the lot having been purchased by Mr. Carr several years ago. The pallbearers were W. B. Buckingham, J. R. Congdon, Geo. E. Vaughn, H. C. Welty, F. M. Playman and Frank Russell.

Has Come West.

Frank Wheelock left this morning for his homestead near Kerrian, S. D., and on Tuesday shipped a mammoth car containing three horses, four cows and a number of hogs and chickens, besides household goods and other necessities. The car was in charge of Ernest Betka, who will remain in the west, and Mr. Wheelock expects to reach Bowman, N. D., the nearest railroad station, in advance of the freight. Mrs. Wheelock will join him within the next two or three weeks. They have leased their property on the west side for one year, and it is a pleasure to know that Mr. and Mrs. Wheelock expect to return to the old home to reside, probably within another year.

CAPTURED SLOT MACHINES

Some Pay Fines and Costs, but Others Plead Not Guilty and Will Fight Charges.

Rev. A. H. Zechiel, of Appleton, secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, was exceedingly busy in these parts the first of the week. On Sunday he caused the arrest of Wm. Ariens, John Skibba and David Heise, proprietors of saloons at Junction City, on the charge of keeping and maintaining slot machines in their places of business. The defendants appeared before Justice Park in this city, Monday, entered pleas of guilty and were fined $1 and costs, a total of $14.98 in each case, which they paid and were discharged.

Monday morning the reverend gentleman from Appleton appeared in this city and in company with local officers served notices on Jos. Boyer, N. C. Jacobs, A. E. Larson, John Martini and Paul Shepreux to appear before Justice Carpenter on a like charge. When arraigned all entered pleas of not guilty. B. B. Park appearing for Mr. Martini and Sicklesteel & Pfiffner for the other defendants. An adjournment was taken until next Wednesday, Nov. 2d. The machines found at Junction City were seized by the sheriff and brought to this city. Those arrested here maintain a determined disposition to fight the case.

Clerk Wanted.

We need a good, steady, reliable young man in our store; one who has had some experience and is willing and able to do thorough work. This is a permanent position, and one that carries with it prestige. Good salary attached, and the opportunity to save money is greater than in a like position in the city. If married, comfortable residence can be had at small expense, also garden. Must have gilt edge reference. Address, Kujawa's One Price Store, Rudolph, Wis.

Died in Winnipeg Hospital.

Fred Culver, a former popular proprietor of the Commercial House at Junction City, and who left only two or three months ago to locate on a homestead near International Falls, Minn., near the north boundary line of the state, died in a hospital at Winnipeg, Canada, Tuesday, the result of a short siege with typhoid fever. Mr. Culver was a resident of Junction City for about four years, was a man of fine physique, and a general favorite with all who knew him. The remains have been shipped to his former home at Oakfield, Wis., for interment.

Some Big Potatoes.

A potato weighing three pounds and twelve ounces was the heaviest tuber brought to Rothman's store last Saturday in response to their advertisement offering a prize of two suits of underwear valued at $4.00. Nick Dombrowski, whose home is in the town of Stockton, near Fancher station, brought in the big potato. The next largest was one weighing three pounds, eight ounces.

Ronald Robin Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Damon H. Campbell, who moved from this city to Polson, Mont., over one year ago, mourn the loss of their baby son, Ronald Robin, who passed away on the 9th inst., after an illness of ten days with cholera infantum. The little one was born at Polson, Sept. 22, 1909, being the second child born in that new town. The parents have two other children, Douglas, aged 6 years, and Reginald, aged 4 years, to comfort them in their loss. Interment took place at Polson.

Normalites Head Association.

About twelve hundred teachers were in attendance at the annual convention of the Northwestern Teachers' Association, held at Eau Claire last Friday and Saturday. Harvey A. Schofield, principal of the Superior High School, was elected president, Alfred J. Herrich, principal of the Cumberland High School, treasurer, and Supt. Brunstad, of Chippewa Falls, a member of the executive committee. All are graduates of the Stevens Point Normal. W. D. Fuller, of Sparta, who was made a director at the Western Wisconsin Teachers' Association, held at La Crosse at the same time, is also a graduate of the school here.

Visitors From Kalamazoo.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gurney arrived here last week from Kalamazoo, Mich., for a month's visit at his old home in McDill and among relatives of Mrs. Gurney in this city. Leo has been located at Kalamazoo for several years, employed as machine tender in one of the Bryant Paper Co.'s mills, and shortly after his return there will assume the position of boss machine tender in a three million dollar plant now being completed by the Bryant people. This mill is being equipped with four machines for making writing and book paper ranging in width from 120 to 176 inches. During his stay here Mr. Gurney is devoting part of his time to duck hunting and last Thursday succeeded in bagging seven fat specimens. A couple of days before he got five ducks along the Plover river.

Circuit Court Adjourns.

R. Wheaton vs. Jacob Beil. Continued.

A Dangerous Practice.

Our attention has been called to the thoughtlessness or criminal carelessness of unknown parties who throw empty bottles on the streets or along the country roads, ruining horses' feet, puncturing bicycle and automobile tires, and otherwise being a general nuisance. In most instances these bottles once contained "liquid refreshments" and were thrown onto the highways by men old enough to know better. One farmer in Stockton had a horse nearly ruined the other day by stepping on a broken beer bottle.

WAUPACA WAS DEFEATED

High School Boys Give Neighbors Their "Bumps" by Score of 26 to 0.

The High school football team went down to Waupaca last Saturday morning on Soo train No. 6 and played the Waupaca High school team that afternoon. When the boys left here they each carried a gunny sack containing their clothes and attracted much attention as they marched to the station. They returned over the Green Bay & Western line that evening.

The game was called promptly at 2:30 o'clock. Stevens Point won the toss and decided to kick off. The ball rolled inside the goal and it was brought out to the 25 yard line where Waupaca was held for downs and forced to kick. We got the ball, but lost it again. When we got it back, a spread play was tried. The line spread out and as Waupaca followed suit to oppose them, Dumas, who got the ball easily, picked his way through and scored a touchdown. Score when time was called, 6 to 0 in favor of Stevens Point.

In the second quarter Waupaca's forward was intercepted by us and we got the ball. A line spread was formed and with two men as interference, Dumas secured another touchdown. Waupaca kicked to us. We advanced the ball by line bucks and forward passes. Ondracek received a delayed forward and made a run of thirty yards for a touchdown. We failed to secure a goal kick. At this juncture Ondracek was ruled out and Gray put in his place. Dumas kicked the ball, Waupaca was held for downs and we secured the ball. Glennon made a spectacular run around left end and scored a touchdown. We also got a goal kick. When time was called the score stood 21 to 6 in favor of Stevens Point.

In the third quarter Chenevert was put in for quarterback. During this quarter we were on the defense most of the time and were pretty busy keeping Waupaca from scoring. Waupaca's captain intercepted one of our passes and after he was downed tried to crawl. This caused them to be penalized 15 yards.

In the last quarter Glennon took his place at quarterback. Dumas scored and secured a drop kick. Waupaca kicked to us. We punted and held them for downs. When we got the ball a shoestring play was tried, but the forward to Rogers was intercepted by Waupaca's quarter, who made 50 yards, but was tackled by Dumas. Although both teams tried hard, neither was able to score any more. Score when time was called, 27 to 0 in favor of Stevens Point.

If the original line-up had been kept, our boys would undoubtedly have secured several scores in the third quarter.

Line-up for Stevens Point: Ends, Cook, Rogers; tackles, Dobeck, Ban-nach; guards, Wells, Moxon; center, Pike; quarter, Glennon, Chenevert; halves, Carpenter, Ondracek, Gray; fullback, Dumas; subs., O'Keefe, Charlesworth.

Railroad Work Being Pushed.

A crew of 32 men under the direction of Section Foreman Thos. Combs is now employed on the new sidetracks being built by the Soo line for division purposes in this city. Besides the several miles of new track for which the grading was completed a couple of weeks ago, three additional tracks will be laid east of the roundhouse. Within a week or two this force will be greatly increased and the work pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Work at the new roundhouse is also going ahead rapidly under the supervision of H. H. Young, a foreman in the bridge and building department, who has fifty men under his charge. Most of the concrete work is completed and stone work for the walls is being done with all reasonable speed. That portion of the city is now one of the busiest sections in town.

High School Notes.

At a meeting last Monday the Juniors elected the following officers: President, Nicholas L. Gross; vice president, Doris Mason; secretary, Gerry Higgins; treasurer, Dorothy Hamilton. The French class recites regularly each Monday and Tuesday afternoons. All subscriptions to the Nooz must be paid up by this Friday.

An effort is being made to start a glee club. About twenty students will join.

The High school football team plays Chippewa Falls on Nov. 5th. A game has been scheduled with Merrill for Thanksgiving day.

Miss Moran's room is now used by Miss Dunning for her English classes. Miss Moran has one of the new rooms on the third floor.

Miss Theresa Sullivan is acting as temporary stenographer in place of Miss Barrows, who is ill.

Bazaar and Concert.

The Ladies Aid of the Evangelical Friedens church, Rev. H. A. Fier pastor, corner Center and Dixon streets, will give a grand bazaar and concert on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 27 and 28, in Rothman's hall. The bazaar will be held on Thursday afternoon and evening, Oct. 27. Useful articles of all sorts and descriptions will be on sale. Refreshments will also be served. The concert will be given on Friday evening at 8:15. The services of St. Paul quartette of Wausau, Prof. G. D. Fier director, have been secured, also those of the well known Weber's orchestra. It will be a rare feast with a good menu and you are heartily invited. Admission to the concert will be 25 cents. Admission to the bazaar will be free. Do not forget the date, the time and the place.

OUR NEXT GOVERNOR

Brief Biographical Sketch of Adolph J. Schmitz, Democratic Candidate for Governor.

Adolph J. Schmitz, Democratic candidate for Governor, acquired by inheritance his uncompromising devotion to liberty in every form, civil, religious and personal. His parents were both born in Germany, where they imbibed the spirit of liberty in their native land during the stormy period of 1848. They were among the early pioneers of Manitowoc county, where in 1843 they settled in the wilderness of the town of Newton, in that county, and reduced a portion of the forest lands to a productive farm. His father taught school in the town of Newton for many years; he represented his town on the county board, was chairman of that body and also represented assembly district in the legislature during the important session of 1874. Adolph J. Schmitz, the Democratic candidate for Governor, was born in the town of Newton, Manitowoc county, on June 4, 1852. He received his early education in the district school. At the age of sixteen he was sent to the German Reform Church Mission school at Franklin, Sheboygan county, Wis. He attended Ripon College for one year and graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1875.

In the fall of that year he commenced the practice of law in Manitowoc county. He occupied several positions of public trust, and discharged the duties with credit. Immediately after graduating from the University he was elected District Attorney of Manitowoc county on the Democratic ticket. To this office he was re-elected many times, and occupied the position of District Attorney of that county for a period of ten years. He was also a member of the county board of his native county, and a member of the city council of the city of Manitowoc; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention in 1892, and secretary of the Wisconsin delegation; and was a candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Democratic ticket in 1894. He continued the practice of law in the city of Manitowoc in association with two of the ablest lawyers in that city, one of whom is now circuit judge. In December, 1896, he formed a partnership for the practice of law in the city of Milwaukee with Ex-Attorney General O'Connor and Leopold Hammel. He now resides and is engaged in the practice of law in the city of Milwaukee.

The Lady Foresters were entertained last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Jos. Schantz, on Church street. Whist was played. Mrs. W. E. Ule receiving first prize and Mrs. S. B. Carpenter the consolation.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Van Buskirk, of Lodi, Cal., are visiting with his brother, George, in Buena Vista, and among relatives and friends at Wausau and Rhineland. The first named gentleman is a former Stevens Point, and always enjoys a sojourn among old friends.

Things are decidedly lively down at the Buena Vista marsh just now, four sets of new frame buildings being in course of construction. Contracts for two of these sets were awarded by W. B. Coddington last week, and the others are being erected under his supervision.

Mrs. John McKinzie, of Milwaukee, visited with relatives and friends in this city a part of last week. Mr. McKinzie is a conductor on the Northwestern. They are the owners of two pleasant residences on Water street, and expect to eventually return here to again make their home.

The members of the Woman's Relief Corps were entertained with a 7 o'clock supper last Thursday evening, the members of the G. A. R. being the hosts. The supper was prepared by Mrs. Wm. Cooper, and thereafter cards were enjoyed and a good social time had.

Ralph Korngold, of California, representing the Social Democratic party, spoke before a fair sized audience in this city last Wednesday evening, explaining the platform and objects of that political body in a creditable manner from his viewpoint, but at the same time advancing several propositions that seemed radical to those who are not inclined toward socialism.

John Pink and family, of the town of Hull, leave this week for Foley, Minn., to make their future home. Mr. Pink recently purchased a farm of 160 acres within a half mile of the city limits of that place, 120 acres of which are under cultivation and the balance covered with timber. He sold his Hull farm, located on the old Wausau road, to M. McMahon of this city.

How to Tell if Your Hair is Diseased

Even if you have a luxuriant head of hair you may want to know whether it is in a healthy condition or not. 98 per cent. of the people need a hair tonic.

Pull a hair out of your head; if the bulb at the end of the root is white and shrunken, it proves that the hair is diseased, and requires prompt treatment if its loss would be avoided. If the bulb is pink and full, the hair is healthy.

We want every one whose hair requires treatment to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We promise that it shall not cost anything if it does not give satisfactory results. It is designed to overcome dandruff, relieve scalp irritation, to stimulate the hair roots, tighten the hair already in the head, grow hair and cure baldness.

It is because of what Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has done and our sincere faith in its goodness that we want you to try it at our risk. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store, Alex Krembs Jr. Drug Co., prescription experts, cor. Main St. and Strongs ave.

THOMAS H. HANNA

The name of Thos. H. Hanna of this city, who was the Democratic candidate for state senator for the district comprising the counties of Portage and Waupaca, but who failed to receive the 20 per cent. vote, will nevertheless be found upon the official ballot when you go to the polls on election day. His name will not be in the Democratic column, but in the Independent column and should receive consideration from the voters of both counties.

Mr. Hanna was born in Illinois in 1867, coming to Wisconsin with his parents when only a few weeks old, and this state has been his home ever since. The family home was near Manawa, in Waupaca county, where Tom spent his boyhood days and attended the district schools. As a young man he followed the life of a farmer, riverman and wood-man, and later attended Lawrence University at Appleton, there after going to a law school at Dixon, Ill., and was admitted to the bar in 1890. For a short time he was located at Manawa, but came to Stevens Point in 1890 and this city has been his home ever since. For four years he served as mayor of Stevens Point, proving to be an excellent executive, and has always been active in every movement intended for the benefit of Stevens Point and the entire county. He is a man of ability and if he is elected to the state senate will at once become a leader in that body and carefully guard the interests of his constituents and the people of the whole state. You will make no mistake by voting for Thos. H. Hanna when you go to the polls Nov. 8th.

GREEKS PAY BIG FINES

Justice James L. McCadden of North Fond du Lac, Shows No Mercy to Law Breakers.

Seventeen Greeks, arrested by W. H. Stevenson, a Northwestern railroad detective, as the result of thefts of various articles from railroad cars at North Fond du Lac during the past ten months, paid fines and costs amounting to $80 each in Justice J. L. McCadden's court at North Fond du Lac last Wednesday afternoon, says the Reporter.

This is the first time in the history of the county that so many foreigners have been arrested at one time. It is also the first time in the history of North Fond du Lac that fines and court costs, aggregating $1,360 have been paid. The amounts received by the railroad companies were: Northwestern, $682.52; Soo line, $215; leaving a balance of $462.48 to apply on the court costs.

The arrest of the Greeks was accomplished after a three weeks' investigation conducted by Mr. Stevenson, who, until a short time ago was a detective of the local police department. Mr. Stevenson spent many nights hiding in cars in the railroad yards at North Fond du Lac and finally secured evidence enough to warrant a raid on three houses occupied by the Greeks. At the time of the first raid, nine foreigners were arrested, and a second raid resulted in the arrest of eight more.

When the cases were heard in Justice McCadden's court on Wednesday several of the prisoners stoutly protested their innocence. One man declared that he had not stolen any butter, and said, "No I didn't, I took chicken."

Is Graduate of Our High School.

Miss Mabel Erickson, of this city, whose marriage to Michael Heitzinger, of Junction City, last Wednesday afternoon was mentioned in The Gazette that day, is a graduate of our High school, class of 1902, and for the past few years has taught in the county schools, where she has made many friends. The groom is the eldest son of Mrs. Kate Heitzinger, of Junction City, and is regarded as a very worthy young man. A wedding reception was held at the home of the bride to a few intimate friends and relatives, after which the couple departed on Soo train No. 5 for Junction, where the groom had a home furnished for their reception. Many friends extend best wishes for a long and happy married life.

THE FUTURE.
(Written for The Gazette.)
Could we but take the hand of time
And heap it full of gold,
Thus bribe the future to reveal,
What tales would then be told.
What tales of joy and tales of woe,
That waits for each and all;
How some will kiss the star of fame,
While others taste but gall.
Could we but raise the mystic veil
That hides all future care,
How many hearts would throb with pain,
To see what's treasured there.
Some will sail on a sun-lit sea,
With fair winds over head;
Some will feast in palace hall,
While others cry for bread.
The fleeting winds will come and go,
With luring eyes we look afar,
The cup of pain that's sure to come
Is hidden by the shining star.
O Time, hold in thy mighty grasp,
And guard with all thy care,
The bitter and the sweet for all
That now lies hidden there.

A DREAM JOURNEY.

It Was a Very Long One, but It Took Only a Few Minutes.

"Dreams are curious things," remarked the amateur psychologist. "Time does not seem to enter into their composition at all. For instance, the other day I was sitting on the porch of a hotel with a friend of mine smoking after lunch. It was a dreary day and conversation lagged. Presently I saw my friend nodding in his chair. He had dozed off, holding his lighted cigar in his left hand, which was folded over his right. His left hand relaxed, and the end of the cigar came in gentle contact with the right hand, inflicting a slight burn."

"The devil it won't!" exclaimed my friend, waking with a start. "The sentence sounded so incongruous that I burst out laughing. 'Won't what?' I asked."

"How long have I been asleep?" he asked. "Not more than a couple of minutes," I replied.

"It doesn't seem possible," he said. "During that time I had a dream that pretty nearly took me around the world. I sailed for Southampton, did England, France, Switzerland and a part of Italy, then through the orient to India. It was in India that I became much interested in one of the native snake charmers. He had the snakes crawling all over him and offered me one to fondle. I told him I was afraid it would bite me. He assured me that it wouldn't, and I took the reptile in my hand. It promptly fastened its fangs in me. I said, 'The devil it won't!' and dropped it, and then I woke up."

"I explained the episode of the lighted cigar," concluded the amateur psychologist, "and we both laughed."—New York Sun.

A Pearl Stringer's Keen Eye.

The pearl stringer's eye becomes practiced in the detection of real and imitation pearls. One glance is usually sufficient. A genuine pearl has a hard look. It presents a sort of shell-like surface with an indescribable bluish. This bluish is so cleverly counterfeited in wax imitations that even those who are accustomed to handling pearls day after day are likely to be deceived.

In one of the large New York jewelry houses last winter a customer purchased a hand painted miniature set in a frame of imitation pearls. On examination it was found that several of the pearls had been slightly defaced, and the whole thing was sent to the manufacturing rooms for repairs. By chance it came under the eye of one of the pearl stringers, who instantly detected four genuine pearls in the circle of imitation ones about the picture. The frame had passed through a dozen expert hands without any one's noticing the presence of real pearls. No one could account for their being there. If they had not been detected the purchaser of the frame would have had a bargain, for the four genuine pearls were worth many times more than the picture and the rest of its setting.—New York Tribune.

WHERE SHE LOST OUT.

Story of a Beautiful Young Thing's Idea of a Husband.

There was once a beautiful young thing who said that the man who won her must love her for herself alone. To her came the first suitor, who said: "I love you because you have such beautiful hair."

"It is a switch," she smiled, and the suitor went away disenchanted.

Came the second suitor, who said: "I love you because of your wonderful eyes."

"One of them squints," she laughed, and the suitor went away swiftly.

"I love you because you have such lovely teeth," declared a third suitor.

"They are false," she smiled, displaying them, and the third suitor went away discomfited.

"I love you because you have a perfect complexion," vowed the fourth suitor.

"I buy it by the box," she sniffed, and the fourth suitor went and married a grass widow with six children.

Came then the fifth suitor, who sighed:

"I love you because you are you, because of yourself, because there is a soul in you which attracts me irresistibly."

"But don't you like my hair?" she asked.

"It does not especially appeal to me. I never liked that tint."

"And my eyes—do you not admire them?"

"They are blue, and my favorites are brown. But I love you because you are you, and—"

"My complexion—do you not think it fine?"

"It is not smooth, and I have noticed that you freckle easily, and your nose turns red in cold weather. That is an immaterial detail, however, for my affection is based on—"

"And my teeth—do you not consider them admirable?"

"They are too small. I am not a man to be swayed by such trivialities. My love is on a higher and nobler plane than—"

"Well, you are a horrid, uncompromising wretch, and I couldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth! The very ideal! If you begin picking flaws with me before we are even engaged, what might I expect of you if we married?"

And the fifth suitor went away and started a bucket shop, and she married a man who told her she had the smallest hands he had ever seen.—Life.

How History Is Made.

Hannibal and his staff were pacing merrily over the Alps on their faithful war elephants.

Suddenly a man with a tin badge and chin whiskers rushed into the roadway and held up his hand.

"You stop right where you be!" he cried.

"Why should I stop?" thundered the great Carthaginian as his maboot looked the elephant's ear.

"You're exceeding the speed limit," replied the man with the star, "and I'm a duly appointed constable, by heck!"

Hannibal was so overcome by this amusing holdup that he tossed a bag of gazoolians to the officer and, laughing hysterically, rode away.

Later on, however, his indignation overcame his sense of humor, and he proceeded to slam the life out of the Roman consuls and their picked veterans, forcing the fighting to the very gates of shuddering Rome.—Boston Traveler.

A Continuation.

A story is told of a deacon in a Duluth church who was given to long winded harangues on whatever subject was up for discussion. At a meeting to discuss an important church matter, having the deacon in mind, a rule was adopted limiting each speaker to five minutes.

The rule was observed until the deacon arose. His five minutes were consumed in pointless preamble. But he was not to be silenced. When the chairman informed him that his time was up the deacon was surprised.

The bell's sharp tinkle caused him to start and frown. "Am I to understand," he said, "that my five minutes have expired?" "Yes, deacon," said the pastor, and the audience tittered slightly. "Then, brethren," said the deacon, "I will throw the rest of my remarks in the form of a prayer."—Iola Register.

REO BREAKS THE RECORD

New York to San Francisco---What This Means to You.

The previous record was fifteen days and two hours, and it was a good one. It has stood three years in spite of many efforts made to break it, for the speed required over all sorts of roads—and much of the way nothing but "desert track"—make the trip the severest accelerated test of endurance.

But at last the REO tried it and smashed the record all to pieces—beat it by 4 days and 11 hours—and beat it fairly and squarely.

The trip was announced in the papers ahead of time so that any one who wanted to could see the start Monday morning, August 8, at one minute past twelve. At every point of the trip the arrival of the REO was checked in by men well known in the community who were not interested in the REO, and these checkings were supported by affidavits. The test was made open and above board—nothing to hide. If the REO had failed it would have gone back and tried over again—over and over again if necessary and all so open that everybody could verify facts.

But it wasn't necessary. The REO has the stuff that stands every test. It has the high power and strength, and it has the construction that permits full use of power over all sorts of roads—even deserts with no roads.

The car that made the previous record was $4,000. The REO that beat it is only $1,250.

The same kind of car that made the run can be seen at Arnott.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can

PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It gives right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows: "When I began using Danderine my hair would not grow beyond my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another from Newark, N. J., writes: "I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful and thick hair any one would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

A lad between 10 and 11 years of age who attends one of the east side schools was brought before Judge Murat, Tuesday morning, on the charge of stealing a gun from the home of Carl Zorn. The boy acknowledged his guilt and told where he had hid the fowling piece. On account of his extreme youth the court put him under parole during good behavior.

The regular monthly stock fair was held in this city last Thursday and was one of the best attended and most successful since the organization of the association. Farmers were present from all parts of the county, and there were many buyers in attendance from outside the county, as well as within. The weather was excellent, and people commenced to arrive early and remained late.

Frank Yach, for many years employed by W. W. Mitchell, died at his home, corner Washington street and Smith place, last Sunday night. He had been afflicted with consumption for a long time, but continued at work until last Thursday. Mr. Yach was 32 years of age and is survived by his widow and five children. The funeral was held at St. Peter's church Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Wausau Sun: T. H. Hanna, the well known lawyer of Stevens Point, has bought a large tract of land in Dancy, embracing about two thousand acres. The home of Frank Maybee in Packer'sville was totally destroyed by fire Thursday evening, together with all its contents. Mr. Maybee and family were not at home at the time, having been near Shawano for some time. The blaze is supposed to have been of incendiary origin and an investigation is being made.

Rev. W. H. Fuller, pastor of the Baptist church, begins to look quite natural again. For several days Mr. Fuller was the possessor of a discolored eye, something very unusual for a gentleman in his profession. It was received in a head-on collision, while the reverend gentleman and another bicycle rider, on a dark night, in the suburbs of McDill, were traveling rapidly in opposite directions. The other fellow escaped with a badly shattered bike.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Monian, who live at 320 Prentice street, mourn the death of their youngest son, Raymond, a child of one year and four months, who died at 7:30 o'clock last Monday evening and was buried from St. Peter's church this morning.

Mr. Koback is a tinsmith by trade and is now employed at Waupaca, where he will take his bride next Friday. The well wishes of many friends are extended.

R. E. Van Kueren, Prohibition candidate for governor, addressed a small audience at the court house, Monday evening, and gave an excellent talk from his party standpoint. Mr. Van Kueren is an able speaker and he was listened to attentively by those present. The speaker was introduced by Prof. J. V. Collins. Rev. T. W. North offered prayer, the Normal ladies' quartette rendered a couple of vocal selections, and at the close of the address and "America" had been sung, Rev. J. A. Stemen pronounced the benediction.

A Coming Event.

The following items from last week's issue of the Amherst Advocate are suggestive of coming events. Mr. Schantz is the youngest son of Mrs. Jos. Schantz of this city. Es. Schantz of Fond du Lac was a guest of Miss Virginia Mason the first of the week. A shower was given in honor of Miss Virginia Mason, at the Starks home Tuesday afternoon, and in lieu of gifts a piece of about eleven dollars was presented to Miss Mason. About forty ladies were present and elegant refreshments were served.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Stevens Point Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the dangers of diabetes or any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Stevens Point citizen says:

Alb. H. Johnson, 608 Michigan avenue, Stevens Point, Wis., says: "I suffered from kidney trouble for more than a year. I felt dull and languid most of the time, had but little energy, and was annoyed by pains through the small of my back. A few months ago I was told by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I accordingly procured a supply at Taylor Bros. drug store. Since using them I have felt much better, and I have had little or no backache. I do not hesitate one moment in saying that Doan's Kidney Pills are an excellent kidney remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agent for the U. S.

TIME TRIED EVERYWHERE

Her Pirate Lover

By ARTHUR L. SANDS
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Molly Van Dusen and I plighted our troth one evening under the parapet of the battery in the town of New Amsterdam. We were looking down the bay, and a ship, the first that had arrived in several weeks, was coming up under full sail. It was summer. All these things I remember well, for it was the happiest moment of my life, and whatever was visible to my dear love and me was deeply impressed upon my mind.

That was a very hot season, and Molly was drooping from the heat. The very next day after she had promised to be my wife her father determined to send her to the eastern coast in Connecticut to spend some time with her mother's brother, Pardon Mathews, hoping that the sea air would strengthen her. I was loath to let her go at such a time and especially since the captain of the ship that came in at the time of our betrothal reported having been chased by a pirate, and it was well known that the buccancers were at any time liable to make a descent on the coast.

But Molly's father packed her off in the coach leaving for Boston, directing that she be put off at a bit of headland jutting out into Long Island sound not far from the settlement at New Haven.

It was a sad day for both of us when she got into the coach and I watched it pass out of sight among the boweries lying to the eastward of the town. And even after the coach had grown so dim with distance as scarcely to be discovered I could see Molly's white handkerchief streaming a signal of her love for me.

I found the town unbearable without her. I played at bowls in the green near the battery and sailed in my boat on Hudson's river, but I could not get on without my Molly, so I determined to go to her. I mounted my sorrel one August morning, with my saddlebags well filled with eatables, and on the third day reached the New Haven settlement. After partaking of a dinner and giving my horse a good feed I remounted and in three hours' time came in sight of that headland where dwelt Pardon Mathews. There are rocks and short beaches on this shore and an occasional knoll covered with long grass. An Indian showed me Mr Mathews' house set on one of these knolls. I trotted on where the road ran near the water and presently, looking ahead, saw two persons standing on a rock that protruded out a few feet above the surface of the sound.

As I drew nearer I could see that one of these persons was a man and the other a woman. The man was in an uncouth dress. What was my surprise when I came near enough to distinguish his apparel to see that he wore a hat with a large brim, a short coat and trousers to his knees, flaring at the bottom of the legs, while a broad belt filled with knives was buckled about his waist.

At once I was filled with alarm, feeling sure that there had been a descent of pirates on the settlers and this fellow had carried off one of the women. Having a pistol in my holster, I drew it forth, saw to the priming and made ready for an attempt to rescue this poor woman. Dismounting, I left my horse in a thicket and, stealing up on the knoll, hid behind a rock and, taking sure aim at the pirate pulled the trigger.

The first refused to light the priming, and I lay flat at the moment the pirate put his aim around the woman's waist and the two stood looking at the incoming tide. Were she a willing captive it would only distress her if I killed her lover. But what was my horror when she turned her face my way to see my Molly.

At first I was minded to kill them both, but, shrinking from having Molly's blood on my hands, I desisted and advanced with my pistol in hand.

"Have you a good mind, Mistress Van Dusen, I have done that you will accept the carcasses of a pirate, or has he murdered your folk and you are making a pretense in order to watch your opportunity to get away from him?"

As I spoke I held the pirate under cover of my weapon, and he, turning, ran like a deer toward Mr Mathews' house.

"See the coward run!" I cried, half minded to shoot him in his tracks.

And then what did Molly do but burst into loud laughter, and, sitting down on the rock, she kept it up till I grew hot with choler and said:

"For shame, Molly, to turn from me to a pirate, and a coward at that! Speak before I kill him!"

This brought her to her senses. "Forbear," she said. "Do not kill a girl."

"A girl!" And have the women turned buccaners?"

With that she fell to laughing again, and I could get nothing from her for a long while when she controlled her mirth and said:

"Tonight uncle gives a dance to the settlers roundabout, and all are to come dressed in some strange costume. This pirate who has just closed the door of the house is my cousin, Pardon Mathews. She is dressed in her costume for the dance. We two came out to watch for the boat bearing guests from New Haven."

"Heavens!" I exclaimed. "Had not my flint failed I would have shot her."

Good Form

There is always a welcome place for a good listener. If you are in this class there are a few rules to be kept in mind. First pay strict attention to the talker. There is no worse breach of good form than the one young girls and young men, too, make to those others who try to amuse them than that of letting their eyes rove in search of somebody else or possibly of a mere escape. Pin your thoughts to the conversation. Do not let your wits go wandering into the why and wherefore of the talker's dress or business.

Be ready to answer any question that may be asked, for of course a good talker will try to engage his listeners in an exchange of ideas. Make it a point to rescue the interesting topic from an inglorious death due to the interrupting person. "You were saying that you saw," etc., is frequently a little thing to bring out a good story that might otherwise go unheard. Every person can do that much. A casual, relevant remark is within any one's power, and the good listener with this ability is as necessary to a social gathering as an interesting talker.

Good listeners rarely have cause for regret or humiliation, and that is much in the favor of silence. Then, too, by listening carefully and attentively you will gain a certain knowledge and valuable information that will in time undoubtedly result in an easy, self possessed ability to talk well. Indeed, there are many more good listeners needed in the social gatherings of our little world.

This is the plea for the rarely cultivated art of keeping silence while others speak. The silent ones should remember that it is the inveterate talker who is considered a bore. So the good listener should never despair.

Bedtime Hour For Guests.

Until the end of time it will probably be a mooted question whether guest or hostess should make the first move for retiring for the night. When staying in a house for the first time this is one of the most difficult points for a guest to decide, and it takes a great deal of tact and discernment to arrive at a correct conclusion.

On the basis that a hostess orders the house and the guest conforms there is no doubt that the person whose home it is should make the first move. One who is staying in the house for the first time cannot be expected to know the habits and rules of the place, including the hour for arising, on which greatly depends that for retiring.

In the summer house at country or seashore the chances are, if the host goes to town for business every day, that the whole household is up early. The hostess is certainly, as a rule, if her husband is a business man. In that case it is almost essential that they go to bed early. Logical as this conclusion may seem, a guest fears to suggest going too early to her own room lest she should seem to be bored during the evening, and thus it is when both really would like to turn in at a reasonable hour they and others are kept up by a desperate attempt to be polite.

Facial Contortions Bad Form

A great many of our facial contortions are due to nervousness, just as we owe to the same cause equally obnoxious habits of tapping with the foot and handling small objects which happen to be within reach of the nervous fingers.

All of these annoying little things are due to a lack of repose and of training in early youth to acquire control of the nerves.

So unconscious are the possessor of these tricks that they will not try to find fault with other people's like habits and be ignorant that they themselves are guilty of similar bad breeding.

It is really ill bred to have these restless habits, no matter how unconscious one is of possessing them for anything is ill bred that gives annoyance to others.

Facial contortions and nervousness are usual among womankind, and it really is too bad, because after awhile they cause lines and actually alter the expression for the worse.

A Guide to Good Manners.

If you are puzzled about a question of etiquette and have not time to consult an older or more experienced friend or relative apply the Golden Rule—to do as you would be done by. This will almost always bring you out of your difficulty with flying colors. The expression "a nature's gentleness" is often applied to some simple minded and unsophisticated man who is thus guided, for, whether we be gentle or simple, the truest good breeding is shown by our care for the feelings of others. The real "great lady" is as thoughtful and considerate for those beneath her in social position as she would be for royalty though she would show her thought in a different fashion, and since we may all be "queens by love" it behooves us to be really courteous and considerate. The brusque, rough woman who confounds a pleasant manner of speaking with insincerity is greatly to be pitied, for she has thrown away her scepter and lost her crown.

In accordance with section 1, Article XII, of the constitution of the state of Wisconsin, and chapters 68, 70 and 74 of the Laws of 1903, the following joint resolutions adopted by the legislature of the state of Wisconsin at the regular sessions of 1908 and 1909 are made a part of the foregoing notice and are to be voted upon at said election, to-wit:

(No. 35.)
JOINT RESOLUTION—Providing an amendment to section 3 of article IV of the constitution of the state of Wisconsin, relating to apportionment.

Resolved, That at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1907 an amendment to the constitution of this state was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment was in the following language:

"Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That section 3 of article IV of the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be amended to read as follows:

"Section 3. At their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall apportion and district anew the members of the Senate and Assembly, according to the number of inhabitants, excluding Indians not taxed, soldiers, and officers of the United States Army and Navy."

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is agreed to by this legislature.

(No. 36.)
JOINT RESOLUTION—To amend section 21 of article IV of the constitution, relating to the compensation of members of the legislature.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1907, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That section 21 of article IV of the constitution be amended by striking out the word "five," being the twentieth word in the body thereof, and by inserting in lieu thereof the word "ten," so that the same when amended shall read as follows:

Section 21. Each member of the legislature shall receive for his services for and during a regular session the sum of ten hundred dollars, and ten cents for every mile he shall travel in going to and from the place of meeting of the legislature on the most usual route. In case of an extra session of the legislature no additional compensation shall be allowed to any member thereof, either directly or indirectly, except for mileage, to be computed at the same rate as for a regular session. No stationery, newspapers, postage or other perquisites, except the salary and mileage above provided, shall be received from the state by any member of the legislature for his services or in any other manner as such member, now, therefore.

Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is agreed to by this legislature.

(No. 38.)
JOINT RESOLUTION—To amend section 10 of article VII of the constitution, relating to internal improvements.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for 1907, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

Resolved by the senate, the assembly concurring, That section 10 of the constitution be amended by adding at the end of said section the following: "Provided that the state may appropriate moneys for the purpose of acquiring, preserving and developing the water power and the forests of the state, but there shall not be appropriated under the authority of this section in any one year more than one-twentieth of one mill of the taxable property of the state as determined by the last preceding state assessment."

Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is agreed to by this legislature.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal done at the capital in the city of Madison this 25th day of August, A. D. 1910.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?
Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.
Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.
Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Depew's Great Speech.
"When I was a very young man," Senator Depew once related, "I went out to make a political speech with some older men one night. They wanted something red hot, and I handed it out.
"I just turned myself to skin the opposition, and, on the whole, the audience seemed to like it. The more they cheered the more I warmed to it. I was immensely pleased with my success. But after I got home I was worried. I had roasted the other side awfully. I lay awake wondering if it wouldn't react and injure our side more than the opposition.
"Then I bethought of some personal allusions I had made that might easily be construed as libelous. I got a good deal excited and slept very little. In the morning I hurried down to see whether the papers had roasted me. The meeting was reported all over the front page. I plunged into it, shivering in nervousness. But I needn't have worried. What it said about my speech was in the last two lines:
"A young man named Depew also spoke."—New York Telegram.

Collecting an Old Debt.
The other day the manager of a furniture house in town asked one of his star salesmen to collect a bill of long standing, for which the regular collector had been unable to get cash. The manager told his man to threaten a lawsuit if necessary. The salesman said he would collect it without that and went to the delinquent's office. He put the bill in the hand of his derby hat, and with the hat held nonchalantly in his left hand he strolled into the inner shrine. The man at the desk looked at him inquiringly and then glanced down at the conspicuous bill.
"Well, what is it?" he asked.
"Pardon me," said the salesman in his best manner, "but could you tell me is Mr. Jones dead?"
"Why, no! I'm Mr. Jones."
"Thank you. That's all I wanted to know," said the salesman and walked abruptly from the room.
Next day a check came for the amount.—New York Sun.

Saving the Union.
Until we had a national game it was silly, according to Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, to speak of the loose group of states as a nation. The people had too much time in which to talk politics, and whenever they talked politics they became angered, and whenever they were angered they wanted to secede or knock spots off each other. There was no one great unifying spirit. There was too much "Maryland, My Maryland," and "Yankee Doodle" and not any "Casey at the Bat." All this is now being allowed to foment a sectional feeling. A man from Boston and a man from Boston could not meet and talk in curves; they had to talk slaves. Imagine the lighthearted state of society! It is a wonder that the nation lasted until baseball arose in its might and strength to make of us one great people!

SAN FRANCISCO IS THE LOGICAL PLACE
Omaha Man Tells Why Exposition Should Go to California.

San Francisco has some very good friends in the middle-west and in the Mississippi valley section, friends who are not at all backward in expressing their preference for this city as the site for the proposed exposition in celebration of the completion of the Panama canal.
This fact was strikingly illustrated recently through the effort of the special representative of the New Orleans exposition boosters, in Omaha, to secure an endorsement for the southern city from the Commercial club, Omaha's leading organization of business men.
In trying to secure this endorsement, J. B. Haynes, New Orleans' special representative, addressed a circular letter to the members of the club and received a reply which must have had the effect of a cold douche on his hopes.
Haynes' letter and the reply, which is signed by R. Miller, one of the most influential members of the club, are here given:
WORLD'S PANAMA EXPOSITION CO., NEW ORLEANS—LOGICAL POINT, OFFICE in the Brandeis Theater Bldg., Telephone Douglas 427.
Omaha, Neb., Sept. 13, 1910.

My Dear Sir:—I understand the Commercial club has asked its members to express in the form of a post-card vote a preference between New Orleans and San Francisco—the two cities which are competing for congressional action designating a city in which to celebrate the completion of the Panama canal in 1915. Before casting your vote, please read the enclosed circular containing points bearing directly on the subject. In forming a conclusion in the case, do not forget the lobby treatment accorded to the big Nebraska delegation which, at large expense, took a special train to Omaha to induce the legislature at Sacramento to provide for an exhibit at the exposition in Omaha in 1898. That legislature passed such a bill, but before the Omaha delegation had traveled many miles on the return trip the bill was repealed, and California did not participate in the Omaha exposition. Moreover, within the last few months the San Francisco Chronicle printed an editorial asserting the failure of the Omaha exposition. That city is positively unfriendly to Omaha for some reason or other.
The World's Panama Exposition company of New Orleans is bidding for Omaha's support. It has done what no other exposition company ever did by establishing a branch office in Omaha, which is a compliment to this city, to say the least, and is enough to entitle the New Orleans project to the thoughtful consideration of every citizen of Omaha.
I would appreciate a reply.
Yours truly,
(Signed) J. B. HAYNES,
Special Representative.

Private Office Romé Miller Interests, Omaha, Sept. 16, 1910.
Mr. J. B. Haynes, Special Representative, World's Exposition, City.
My Dear Mr. Haynes—I have your circular letter of Sept. 13, relative to the World's Exposition and note carefully all that is contained therein. I take issue with you in reference to San Francisco.
I do so fully appreciating the fact that you are a special representative of New Orleans, and it is your duty to plug for that city, but when it gets down to brass tacks, in my judgment there is no comparison between the two cities as regards the Panama exposition.
I have visited both cities many times. New Orleans is not in the same class as San Francisco. In climate, beauty of surroundings or in general interest to the average traveler.
I think it is unfair to damn San Francisco on account of something that the Chronicle has printed, or to go into ancient history and quarrel over an act of the California legislature.
I have in mind what San Francisco has gone through in the last few years and the undaunted spirit of its people, and what the people of the west owe to that spirit, and which they can only pay by encouraging them in their future undertakings.
(Signed) R. MILLER.

Schwab For San Francisco.
Charles M. Schwab, former head of the steel trust says: "I favor San Francisco for the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915, and you can put me down among the boosters. I will also promise that if San Francisco holds the exposition the Bethlehem Steel company will take part by exhibiting its products of armor and armament, an exhibit that has not appeared since the Centennial exposition in 1876."

Hitchcock Favors San Francisco.
Frank H. Hitchcock, postmaster general, says: "Nothing would please me more highly than the selection of San Francisco for the Panama-Pacific exposition, and I think the record of rebuilding and the recovery from the fire, as well as the remarkable record made in the raising of money for the support of the fair, should be recognized, and will have great weight with congress in reaching a decision as to the location of the exposition."

San Francisco's Big Bid.
San Francisco has raised its bid for the Panama celebration to $17,500,000. If money talks as much to the point in this matter as it does in most other affairs of life, the contest is already over. New Orleans will have to be satisfied with the Mardi Gras.—Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat-Chronicle.

Congress Can Not Refuse.
Elbert Hubbard (Fra Elbertus) says: "The miracle of four years has taught the world a lesson. Congress and the president can not will not refuse the claim of San Francisco as the festival city of the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915."

BREEDING THE PERCHERON HORSE.

Percheron horses have improved the breeds of draft horses in every civilized country in the world, writes a veteran Missouri breeder. The Percheron horse seems to make a better cross with foreign breeds of horses than does any other known draft breed. It is undoubtedly due to this fact that the Percheron horse is so widely distributed.
The development of the Percheron horse undoubtedly is due to a great extent to the soil and climate, yet the breeders, the men who choose the stallions, who select the mares and who raise them to maturity, have a great deal to do with it. These men not only have an intense love for their province and are proud of its most important industry, but they are lovers of the animals they breed. They look after them carefully; they treat them well; they do their utmost to see that each animal has the proper care, the proper attention, the proper feed, the proper nourishment, in order to bring it to its most perfect development. The love of their breed of horses is bred in them. The son follows in the footsteps of his father and attempts to improve upon what his father has already accomplished. There is a section where the young men do not leave their birthplace and go to the cities, but where they stay in the locality in which they are born because they love it and appreciate the opportunity that they have in producing the best breed of draft horses in the world. A fact which possibly influences to a great extent the young man to stay in the country is because at the bottom the French farmer is economical, and he loves very much the dollars which flow into his pockets from the other countries of the world for the horses which they breed and raise.

WELL MUSCLED QUARTERS.

The French government has for many years taken a great interest in the breeding of Percheron horses. Through its system of shows, through the pensions and approval given to the best stallions, it has had a great influence upon the improvement of the Percheron breed.
Hardly more than 5,000 colts considered sufficiently good for registration are bred each year in the Percheron district. In spite of the continuous drain upon the breeding stock of the country the Percheron horse is today better than he ever was. His size has been increased, while the qualities which have made him famous throughout the world have not diminished.

Roots For Sheep.
There cannot be any question about the fact that feeding roots to sheep works wonders with sheep intended for show or breeding. It has been noticed that the best developed specimens, particularly those that are found at the early shows, come from root feeding breeders. Not even in summer with ample pastures will sheep make the development or go to the shows in the condition that those do whose rations are re-enforced with an ample supply of soiling crops or roots. In winter some have tried to substitute silage, often with good results. Roots, however, are better and safer to feed. They keep the sheep in the best possible physical condition and secure a development that cannot be attained in any other way.

Fall Pasture For Swine.
Cowpea seed were fed to swine with corn, equal parts of each, for fattening purposes by the Alabama station, and the results were highly satisfactory. Peas for this purpose were profitably used until the price exceeded $1.05, in which case corn with some other feed was more profitable.
With present high prices of cowpeas they cannot be used profitably for fattening swine, but the plants make most excellent pasture for young pigs and breeding stock.
Corn for finishing swine with a little supplement is ideal, but should be sparingly used for pigs and breeding stock. The pasture is indispensable for young stock.

Best Food Is Cheapest.
Feed that produces the largest flow of milk is the cheapest in the end. Trying to keep the feed bill down at any season will result in unsatisfactory returns from the herd. About $1 in every two spent for bran, oilmeal and other concentrated feeds is again realized in the manure if it is saved and applied to the land for growing crops. Manure is a part of dairy products.

Not All Alike.
It is absurd to assume things about other people, to think that all the world shares any emotion, any desire, dislike, or affection.
It is in time of sudden mishap or accident that Chamberlain's Liniment can be relied upon to take the place of the family doctor, who cannot always be found at the moment. Then it is that Chamberlain's Liniment is never found wanting. In cases of sprains, cuts, wounds and bruises, Chamberlain's Liniment takes out the soreness and drives away the pain. Sold by H. D. McCulloch Co.

E. W. Czeskleba and family of Waupaca called on relatives and friends here last week Tuesday evening, coming over in their new auto.

Chris Halverson of New Hope commenced buying potatoes here for the A. M. Penney Co. on Monday. The buyers in this village are P. N. Peterson, Geo. B. Allen and A. M. Penney Company.

Mr. Edwin Turner, who had been very low for the last six weeks, died at his home on High school street last Tuesday afternoon aged, 80 years. He was one of our oldest settlers and a greatly esteemed citizen.

Oct. 20th, at the home of C. F. Haertel on John street, occurred the marriage of Allan C. Behrendt of Stevens Point and Miss Phoebe Mae Haertel, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Haertel. Rev. Webster Millar of Waupaca officiated. The bride was beautifully attired in pink silk and carried a bouquet of white bridal roses. After the ceremony and congratulations the bridal party sat down to a wedding dinner of three courses served by the bride's friends, Misses Zella Delaney and Sarah Wilson. Miss Bessie Wilson presided at the piano. The bride is one of Amherst's most popular young ladies and leaves a host of friends who will miss her. The groom is an only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Behrendt of Stevens Point. He is an extent hearty good wishes. After a few weeks spent in the south part of the state they will be at home at 449 Water street, Stevens Point.

MEEHAN.

Ed. Slack left for Glidden, Monday, where he intends to stay for the winter. Wm. Brunker, Republican candidate for sheriff, was a caller here Saturday.

Misses Dora Warner and Kate Roorman went to Saratoga Monday to visit friends.

Leonard Pascavis recently went to Montana and joined his brother, Jim, who has been located there for some time.

Gene Clendenning returned Saturday from St. Cloud, Minn., where he had been employed at mason work since last July.

The first destructive frost struck here Saturday night, Oct. 22nd, which is the latest a freeze has held off here for many years.

Marshall Squares of Stevens Point, while returning from an outing at Camp Douglas, visited friends here Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Aldo Raymond will continue to preach here the coming year, having been appointed to this place by the annual U. B. conference.

A. E. Swensen was up from Chicago last week looking after his farming interests. He was very well pleased with the abundant yield of farm products and the general appearance of the country for this time of the year. We notice by the papers that a good many ripe strawberries have been found lately. Now we are informed that John Rieman, south of here in the town of Saratoga, found a cluster of large ripe blueberries Oct. 17th, which is certainly unusual for central Wisconsin.

ARNOTT.

Leo Jankowski was at Stevens Point on business Monday.

John Ryan made a business trip to Nekeos last Wednesday.

Joseph Raymond transacted business in Stevens Point Saturday.

Alex Peplinski of Stockton visited friends in our vicinity Sunday.

John Hebal of Stevens Point visited at the home of Emil Engwerson.

Undersheriff Sutherland spent several hours in our town Saturday.

Sam Kussmann of Amherst Junction spent several days with his brothers, John and E. C. Kussmann.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bourcier of Buena Vista visited Sunday at home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Wagner.

There was a surprise party on Mr. and Mrs. Milkoski last Sunday. It was largely attended and all reported a good time.

Misses Christina Koltz and Loretta and Cecelia Leary, who are attending the Stevens Point Normal, spent Sunday at home.

Misses Pauline and Myrtle Schadloski of Tomahawk, after visiting several weeks with relatives and friends, returned home Saturday.

There will be a harvest ball at M. W. A. Hall, Friday evening, Oct. 28th. Good music in attendance. Supper will be served by the Royal Neighbors.

Talk about a lucky farmer! John Kussmann is one. He sold 3,750 bushels of potatoes at 50 cents per bushel, which were contracted to J. A. Werachowski about two months ago.

Frank Poust and family of Lanark visited relatives here Sunday.

Mrs. Frank King, who had been visiting with her parents near Almond for several months, returned to her home in New London last week.

Mrs. J. Ryan and son W. F., spent Monday at Amherst.

Miss Nellie Leary spent a few hours at the C. Brienstein home Sunday.

John Peterson of Amherst spent few hours here Tuesday.

Henry Koltz was a business caller to Stevens Point Monday.

Richard O'Keefe and sister, Miss Nora, and Carrie Curran visited Sunday at the home of Wm. O'Keefe in Buena Vista.

DANCY.

Frank Gollan, from Stevens Point, who had been here for some days trapping up on the Little Eau Pleine river, was picked up by Game Wardens Foster and Cale for trapping out of season, last Saturday, and all of his catch of fur seized. He was taken to Wausau Saturday evening and Monday was fined $25 and costs.

Last Sunday evening the young people in this locality tendered Miss Ella Marchel a miscellaneous shower at her home in honor of her approaching marriage to J. Masloff of Junction City, which event will be solemnized at St. Francis Catholic church, Knowlton, Monday morning, Nov. 7th. The bride-to-be is one of our best and most popular young ladies and the young people will be sorry to lose her from among them.

Many from this vicinity were at Knowlton last Monday morning to witness the marriage of Stannie Winglewski and Mary Jazdzefski, which event took place at St. Francis Catholic church. Rev. F. Wojak officiated and also was present at the wedding festivities that followed at the home of the bride's parents and which were attended by people from all over the country. Eatables and refreshments were in abundance and were handed out unsparingly. The groom is one of the town of Knowlton's most well-to-do and best citizens. He is one of the trustees of St. Francis Catholic church and in whatever position he is placed he shows his worth. The young lady he selected as his life partner is entirely worthy of him, pleasing in appearance, the possessor of good common sense and lots of industry. She will make a model wife and helpmate. That they may live long and enjoy health, wealth and prosperity is the wish of their many friends.

Two tramps struck Dancy last Saturday evening while yet good daylight without, and while M. H. Altenburg was home to supper broke into his general store by prying open a side door. They opened his cash drawer and took nearly $70 in cash and a few pair of heavy woolen hose. As soon as Mr. Altenburg returned from supper he discovered his loss and all the places along the line were notified by telephone. After leaving here the burglars walked along the wagon road to Knowlton and there they took the evening passenger north to Mosinee via blind baggage, bringing up at a saloon run by J. Ahles, just north of Mosinee. On Sunday they spent money lavishly. Henry Kronenwetter, who had a description of them, telephoned to Dancy that suspicious-looking parties were there. John Kuffner, constable at Mosinee, was notified and went out and arrested the pair and kept them in the lock-up Sunday night. Upon searching them only $6.00 was found, the rest having been spent or gotten rid of in some way. Monday morning Miss Evelyn L. Knoller, the only one who saw them in Dancy previous to the robbery and from whom they enquired where the postoffice was, and Roger Guenther, who saw them at Knowlton, went to Mosinee to identify the prisoners and Mr. Altenburg also went along and identified his hosiery, which they were wearing. Monday afternoon they were taken to Wausau, where they pleaded guilty and should be given a long stay behind the bars. When people have so far degenerated as to break into a building in almost daylight, running the risk of losing their lives for a few dollars to get on a drunk with, the sooner they are out of the way the better. But even that is a poor recompense for the law abiding citizen who labors hard for his money and livelihood and have it snatched away by such miserable specimens of humanity.

KNOWLTON.

Miss Salina Breitenstein is at home after two weeks at Waupaca.

Mrs. Anna Jahn of Ogema visited relatives here during the week.

Miss Rose Guenther of Wausau was a home visitor between trains Saturday.

Miss Winnie Hayner was a Monday visitor to our Marathon county metropolis, Wausau.

Miss Louisa Paetch, after a week at her home, has returned to Stevens Point where she is employed.

Raymond Malone of Wausau enjoyed the Saturday and Sunday recess from the Wausau High school at Knowlton.

R. C. Guenther was called to Mosinee Monday to assist in identifying the supposed burglars that broke into the Minor Altenburg store and postoffice at Dancy Saturday night. Two suspicious characters had been tarrying around his place of business during the day, with apparently no visible excuse for their peculiar style of sight seeing. They were arrested at a saloon in the town of Kronenwetter.

We noted several potato items in last week's issue of the various Portage and Marathon county papers, which all sounded good. Now Knowlton has one to offer. While Knowlton does not care to boast very often, still it must notice the big potato grown on the James Allen farm, about two miles north from the postoffice, on the Wausau road, and is titled by Mr. Chas. Haeth, who has dug some wonderful potatoes this fall. The largest one weighed five pounds. We all expect an invitation for dinner when this mammoth vegetable is put upon the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Odenwalder left Monday for a week's visit at White-water, Janesville, Milton and Chicago, at which latter city Mr. Odenwalder will attend the buttermakers' convention.

CUSTER.

Misses Maude and Ethel Lewis, who left for San Diego, Cal., Friday, write back that they arrived there safely and enjoyed the trip. They will spend the winter with their sister, Mrs. Wm. Bigler.

Miss Anna Ryan began school here, Monday, and Miss Lizzie Leary of Arnott also began school in district No. 8.

There is a basket ball game promised to be given in Foresters Hall on the evening of Nov. 4th, between the local boys and an Amherst Junction team. After the game a dance will be given; good music and a good time guaranteed.

It is safe to say most everyone has finished their potato crop in this vicinity. The acreage was about 80 or 90 bushels per acre, while some of the farmers had a remarkably large yield, indeed remarkable for the dry summer they experienced, in some instances reaching 150 bushels per acre.

FLOVER.

Wm. Carley looked after his potato interests at Medford, Monday.

E. J. Youmans and wife Sundayed with John McGown.

On Wednesday evening the ladies of the Eastern Star will entertain Mrs. Rachel Gardner of Grand Rapids, Past Grand Matron of the order.

Some of our young gentlemen announce a social hop at the Post Hall Thursday evening.

Will Alban, of St. Paul, renewed old acquaintances in town one day last week.

Miss Cynthia Dickerman visited with Mrs. Entzinger last Saturday.

Mrs. F. G. Pierce and sons, of Medford, stopped over Monday night with Grandpa Pierce, while on their way to Endeavor, Mrs. Pierce's old home.

Our town supervisors were in session last Wednesday and granted a retail liquor license to Alex Banach, who has purchased the George Yorton property and will occupy the same in a few days.

Raymond Newby and wife tarried in town Saturday evening, while on their way to Stevens Point to spend Sunday.

Work in our village school is progressing nicely. The board has bought a new table and 24 little chairs and other kindergarten material for the instruction and amusement of the smaller scholars.

Discouraging days for evening sociables. A little too chilly to loaf outside and the flies pester the life out of us when in by the fire, and the deer season yet 14 long days away.

Fred Pourcia, of Reeder, N. D., has been looking after his farming interests here for a week or two.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Galecki mourn the loss of their son, Alex, who died on Sunday after a short illness of only about one week. The deceased was a bright, active young man, 19 years of age, and the only child left at home to comfort the aged father and mother, hence his sudden death is felt all the more keenly by his relatives and friends. He leaves one brother, Bernard, and one sister, Mrs. M. Banach. The funeral was held Wednesday morning with interment in St. Bronislaw's cemetery.

In Memoriam—G. F. Andree.

[By George H. Metcalf.]

It is not given us to place
A judgment on the human race;
'Tis well that this is so,
We cannot tell, we do not know,
What impulse prompts, what lies below.

The mystery of death we cannot solve,
Man lives and dies without his own resolve;
Born, perhaps, a certain pathway to pursue,
He follows it his whole life through.

Much may it be against his will
To do the things he does, and still
He does them and we grieve, and pity him
And wish, yes, wish, it might have been.

And then I ask what man shall say,
When on the final judgment day,
Our deeds are balanced in the scale,
The good, the bad, which shall prevail?

The good, the bad, which shall prevail?
And good deeds far outweigh the bad,
For by your deeds I judge he said,
For such as you, My Son, has bled,
Were this not so I should have said,
That still we all are lost.

Then place on his grave a simple flower
And a simple prayer we will say,
For we know he loved the simplest things,
And he will love them over the way.

This is Rather Neat.

An English critic of American social conditions says that men in this country are too much inclined to put women on pedestals. The only answer to such criticism is pity for the nation that has not such a beautifully decorative use for pedestals.

Stories at Less Than a Cent Apiece.

In the fifty-two issues of a year's volume The Youth's Companion prints fully two hundred and fifty stories. The subscription price of the paper is but $1.75, so that the stories cost less than a cent apiece, without reckoning in all the rest of the contents— anecdotes, humorous sketches, the doctor's weekly article, papers on popular topics by famous men and women.

Although the two hundred and fifty stories cost so little, they are not cheap stories. In variety of scene, diversity of incident, skill and truth in character-depicting, they cannot be excelled.

The Announcement for 1911, beautifully illustrated, giving more detailed particulars of these stories and other new features which greatly enlarge the paper, will be sent to any address free with sample copies of current issues.

Every new subscriber receives free The Companion's Art Calendar for 1911, lithographed in thirteen colors and gold, and if the subscription is received at once, all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1910. The Youth's Companion, 144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass. New subscriptions received at this office.

ELLIS.

John Hleffron and family, of the city, were visitors to Ellis last Sunday. Wm. Adams, of Stevens Point, is engaged in repairing the residence of Peter Eiden.

Nic Eiden and John Jacobs and mother, of Arnott, and Peter Schmitt and family, of New Hope, were Ellis visitors on Sunday.

Four young people, August Michael-kamp, Alfred Koltz, Julia Bungert and Helen Eiden, received first communion at St. Martin's church last Sunday.

Peter Schliesman, one of the most respected residents of Sharon, was 80 years of age last Saturday, and on Sunday there was a large gathering of relatives and friends at his home to help celebrate the event. All had a good time.

"I was troubled with catarrh of the head for many years. It affected my sense of smell, hearing and sight.

"I spent lots of money with doctors and the use of local applications to relieve me, but to no purpose until my attention was called to the wonderful effects of Peruna.

"I must say that I met with most surprising and satisfactory results. Peruna took hold of the complaint and drove it entirely out of my system.

"Although well along toward the allotted span of man's life, I am as pleased as a child over the results, and feel like a young man again."

EPITOME OF A WEEK'S NEWS

Most Important Happenings Told in Brief.

PERSONAL.

Charles Hillis of New York, assistant secretary of the treasury, has tendered his resignation to President Taft, but will not leave the service until next March, according to reports in Washington.

Twice in his speech at Ithaca, N. Y., Prof. E. H. Woodruff of Cornell university called Theodore Roosevelt a liar, once an "unmitigated liar." His attack, made at a political rally over which he presided, threw the house into an uproar.

The condition of Prince Francis of Teck, a brother of Queen Mary, has become extremely critical. Prince Francis is ill with pleurisy and recently underwent two operations.

Robert E. Peary, the arctic explorer, advanced to the rank of captain in the corps of civil engineers of the navy by reason of the retirement on account of age of Capt. U. S. G. White.

United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island has recovered from the slight bruises received when he was knocked down by a Madison avenue car at Sixty-ninth street, New York city.

David Bennett Hill, ex-United States senator and former governor of New York, died suddenly at Wolfert's Roost, his country home, of an attack of biliousness. He was sixty-seven years old.

Marvin Hughitt, president of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad since 1887, retired from that office and William A. Gardner, heretofore vice-president of the company in charge of operation, was elected to succeed him. Mr. Hughitt was made chairman of the board of directors.

J. P. Morgan, the New York financier, who is attending the Protestant Episcopal church convention in Cincinnati, is suffering from a slight attack of the grip. It is said his condition is not serious.

GENERAL NEWS.

Mrs. Rebe Cooper of Chicago, a passenger on the Morgan line steamer Comus, in port at New York from New Orleans with 30 passengers, kept up the spirits of the others on board when the Comus ran into a terrific hurricane off the southern coast of Florida.

Mountaineer friends of John Moore, under sentence to be electrocuted for the murder of Frank Howl, descended upon the Nelson county jail at Livingston, Va., stormed the building and rescued the prisoner.

Alarmed at the prolonged silence of three balloon pilots and their aids, who left St. Louis in the international race, the Aero club of St. Louis has asked the Canadian government to begin a hunt for them.

Great Britain has proposed that all the powers recognize the Republic of Portugal at the same time. Germany replied approving the suggestion.

Approximately 2,500 men employed in the mechanical trades on the Missouri Pacific Iron Mountain system walked out in sympathy with the striking machinists. If the trouble is not settled within a reasonable time the heads of the unions have threatened to cause a walkout on all of the Gould lines.

While rain fell in torrents, adding gloom to the already sorrowful occasion, the body of Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver was laid to rest in Oakdale cemetery on a hillside overlooking the city of Fort Dodge, Ia. Following the ritualistic services of the church, eulogies were delivered by Rev. Charles M. Stuart, Chicago; Governor Carroll, of Iowa; Senator Cummings; Bishop William Fraser McDowell of Chicago.

After an inspection of state high ways built by convict labor in Colorado, Gov. F. M. Warner of Michigan declared himself in favor of giving the system a trial in his own state.

After using imported Welsh coal in the city's engines for nearly fifty years, the New York fire department has decided that the home product, selected coal from Indiana fields, is cheaper and develops greater energy.

Yale university has just received from the commercial commissioners of Japan who made a tour of the United States an engrossed kakemono expressing their thanks for courtesies shown. The kakemono is dated at Tokyo and signed by all the commissioners.

Milton Anderson Carlisle, aged seventy, former president of the Newbury (S. C.) National bank, was found guilty of misapplication of funds of his bank.

An alleged attempt to fix venetian who have been called in the trial at Springfield, Ill., of State Senator Pemberton and Representative Clark, charged with conspiracy to commit bribery, is under investigation by State's Attorney Burke at Springfield as the result of evidence which was brought to his attention.

Admiral Dewey's old steamer Zafiro, which carried the coal supply for the American fleet at the battle of Manila bay, has been sold to the Mexican government for about $100,000.

The Philadelphia, champions of American league, made it three straight in the world's series Thursday when they beat the Chicago Nationals before a crowd of 26,210 people at Chicago, by a score of 12 to 5. In every department of the game the Quaker City team had it on the veteran pennant winners.

With the gradual restoration of communication along the Florida coast south of St. Augustine the extent of the devastation wrought by the West Indian hurricane is being partially revealed. Dispatches from Tampa and Key West received by roundabout routes give a long list of vessels wrecked and lives lost.

The climax was reached in the sensational murder case when Dr. H. H. Crippen took the witness stand to refute the charge that he had murdered his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen. As Crippen was called he appeared calm and self-possessed. He admitted that he lied concerning his wife's disappearance in order to cover up the scandal.

Dr. Loring B. Loomis of Chicago, who shot and killed Miss Eliza Dodge at Cortland, N. Y., last week and then shot himself, died in the Cortland hospital.

"Queen," a trick elephant, became enraged at Robert Shields, a new keeper, who tried to shackle her in her winter quarters at Jersey City, and crushed him to death.

Fire starting in the freight houses of the Chicago & Alton railroad at East St. Louis, Ill., spread rapidly to other buildings and caused a loss of more than $500,000.

At a session of the New York legislative bribery investigation committee, Assistant District Attorney Robert Elder of Kings county, called as a witness, testified that he was told by Senator Frank J. Gardner that the president of the state senate received $5,000 in connection with the anti-race-track betting legislation and that Senator Foelker, now a congressman, received $10,000.

The special session of the Colorado legislature adjourned after lasting 71 days. An initiative and referendum bill, a primary bill, a registration bill and a railroad commission bill were passed.

The resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee consisting of 14 members of the Protestant Episcopal church to form a committee to advance a call to the other Christian churches to hold a conference on the matter of uniting all churches into one was passed at the meeting of the house of deputies at Cincinnati.

Re-election of executive officers will be prohibited in the new state of New Mexico if the recommendations submitted to the constitutional convention are incorporated in the final draft.

The validity of the "Carmack amendment" to the Hepburn rate law of 1904 was before the Supreme court of the United States Wednesday for argument. This amendment makes the initial carrier of interstate commerce liable for damages occurring in transportation not only on its own line but on connecting lines.

Safety of the traveling public is the principal subject of discussion at the national convention of the American Railway Bridge and Building association, which was opened at Denver, Col.

His health shattered after a struggle of fifty-five years in an attempt to free Ireland from the rule of Great Britain, O'Donovan Rossa is critically ill in his home at New Brighton, S. I.

The first attempt to cross the Atlantic in a dirigible balloon has proved a failure. The America, with Walter Wellman and his party of five on board, was picked up almost 275 miles due east of Cape Hatteras, by the incoming Bermuda liner Trent.

Customs officials in New York have discovered a new type of fraud. Art and antique dealers have been entering objects worth $1,000 to $2,000 at from $20,000 to $50,000 to deceive purchasers. There will be no prosecutions.

John D. Rockefeller has increased his gift to the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research by a donation of $3,820,000. This brings the total Rockefeller gift in the interest of medical research up to $8,240,000.

From the West Indies to the Florida coast, throughout the region of the Tortugas and from the Florida coast to Mexico in the Gulf of Mexico, the grasp of a hurricane which is striking terror to the hearts of the people of the whole immense area.

The Last Resting Place of Florence Nightingale

THE BURIAL OF FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

THE funeral of Florence Nightingale, as described by a London correspondent, was an exceedingly simple one. The coffin, covered with Miss Nightingale's white cashmere shawl, was taken from South street and conveyed to Waterloo. The coffin was carried to the train by Grenadier, Coldstream and Scots guards. The procession reached East Wellow at three o'clock. Rev. S. M. Watson and Rev. T. G. Gardiner officiated at the grave. The mourners here were restricted to relatives of Miss Nightingale—Doctor and Mrs. Shore Nightingale—Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shore Nightingale, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan Nash, Sir Harry Verney, and one who bore the honored name of Arthur Hugh Clough.

The death of this remarkable woman at the age of ninety-seven marks an era. Her intelligence was inseparable with an intense interest in the alleviation of human suffering. This, at the early age of twenty-one, led her to give attention to the condition of hospitals. Like John Howard before her, she started upon a "circumnavigation of charity," visiting and inspecting the civil and military hospitals all over Europe. With the Sisters of Charity in Paris she studied the system of nursing and management in the French hospitals, and herself went into training seven years later as a nurse in the institution of Protestant Deaconesses at Kaiserswerth. Returning to England, she put into thorough working order the sanatorium for governesses in connection with the London institution. The term of apprenticeship, which thus served as an unconscious preparation for her life work, extended over a decade of years.

When in the spring of 1854 war was declared with Russia, a British army of twenty-five thousand men embarked for the scene of the conflict. The battle of Alma was fought September 20, and the wounded and sick were sent to the rude hospitals prepared for them on the banks of the Bosphorus. These were soon overcrowded and their unsanitary condition was such that the rate of mortality far exceeded that of the fiercest and bloodiest battle itself.

It was at this great crisis that Miss Nightingale offered to organize at Scutari a nursing department upon the latest sanitary basis, and Lord Herbert, then of the war office, gladly accepted the offer. Within a week, October 21, she actually was on the way with her band of nurses, and arrived in Constantinople November 4, on the eve of Inkerman and at the beginning of the famous and terrible winter of that disastrous campaign. She found the wounded from that second battle filling the wards with 2,300 patients, and during that critical period she exhibited a devotion to her work and to the comfort of the sufferers that has passed into history as one of the most remarkable exhibitions of self-oblivious love that the world has ever recorded. This grand woman stood for twenty hours out of the twenty-four to see the wounded and sick provided with every accommodation and comfort that was possible in their condition.

In the spring of 1855, while in the Crimea organizing the nursing department of the camp hospitals, her untiring toil and unintermitting labors brought on a prostrating fever. Nevertheless, she refused to leave her post. Slowly recovering, she stayed at Scutari until, in 1856, the British evacuated Turkey on July 28. She saved not only the health but the life of hundreds and thousands of soldiers at the risk of the exposure of her own health in the severe physical, mental, and especially emotional strain to which she had voluntarily subjected herself. And it is not too much to say that the result was a permanent breakdown in her own health. She became a chronic invalid.

Nevertheless, even in her sickroom her mind and heart were still busy devising means for the permanent improvement of the health of the soldier and the diminution of the awful exposures incident to war.

When the Crimean war closed there was a public sense of the indebtedness not only of the British army and nation, but of the whole civilized world to Miss Nightingale.

Surviving by all these years nearly all of her Crimean contemporaries, she has borne a fame which none of them surpassed, if indeed any of them has ever rivaled it. That war had the advantage of being chronicled by one of the most engaging historians of the century.

The work of Florence Nightingale during that war was like the life of Daniel in Babylon—one in which not even an enemy could find a fault. If it was exceptionally benevolent in motive, it was exceptionally effective in execution. She was devoted to her work as no Indian fakir to his sacrifices. Yet she never degenerated into a fanatic.

She ventured to antagonize former traditions and stubborn prejudices. It has been well said of her that she set herself to overthrow the fetish "It can't be done," and of the superstitiously supposed inevitable. Her success was beyond words, though her task was a stupendous one. She was not only a missionary in the highest sense to the sick and the wounded, but she was a pioneer and a leader. She left the way open on the part of all that might follow her to a success like to her own. Her work has been calmly and judiciously pronounced epochal, like that of Lister and Pasteur in therapeutics. The subsequent achievements wrought in the department of military nursing and hygiene from those days on, and down to the sanitary commission in the American war, and the remarkable feats of the Japanese surgeons and doctors in the late war with Russia, are to be traced to Florence Nightingale as their real mother. Perhaps the greatest result of all has been effected in providing the impetus in the direction of the rational, sanitary and scientific care of the sick and wounded.

WORLD SERIES END

PHILADELPHIA "ATHLETICS" WIN BASEBALL PENNANT FOR 1910.

LOSE ONE GAME OUT OF FIVE

Deciding Contest is Played at Chicago Before Record Crowd—Great Pitchers' Battle for Seven Innings—Collins Plays Brilliantly.

Chicago—The 1910 baseball pennant was won by the Philadelphia American league team, the men from the Quaker city defeating the Chicago Nationals four out of five games.

At the deciding contest on Sunday one of the largest crowds that ever attended a ball game in Chicago—27,374—was present, and up to the eighth gave one of the rarest exhibitions of "rooting" ever witnessed in this city. When Chicago scored in the second inning the "fans" went wild and when the Quaker City men took the lead in the fifth the crowd begged and pleaded with their favorites to "come back" and win out. But, after the fatal eighth, when Philadelphia scored five runs, they sat back in their seats and watched silently the work of the youthful machine triumph over the veterans whom they had regarded as unbeatable.

Brown and Coombs, the latter the iron man of the series, fought a great pitchers' battle for seven innings and Brown then blew. In the eighth the entire Athletic team went to bat and hammered Brown hard. Four hits, two of them doubles, a wild throw by Zimmerman and a wild pitch by the three-fingered twirler, sent five Athletic players over the plate and blasted the hopes of the Cub followers.

Collins, the second baseman of the Philadelphia, was the star of the game. He drove out two doubles and a single, and, when the battle was won, stole third, that he might display his speed. In fact, Collins was a large factor in every contest between the two teams. His hitting, fielding and base running was of the most brilliant character.

Total	5	0

Two base hits—Chance, Murphy, Lord, Collins (2). Shekhan, Sacrifice hits—Zimmerman, Barry. Stolen bases—Hartel, Collins (3). Zimmerman. Bases on balls—By Brown 1, by Coombs 4. Wild pitches—Brown 2. Umpires—O'Day, Sheridan, Connelly and Rixler.

DR. CRIPPEN DOOMED TO HANG

American Dentist Receives Death Sentence for Murder of His Wife, Belle Elmore, the Actress.

London—Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen was Saturday sentenced to death by the lord chief justice of England. He will be hanged on November 15. It required only 30 minutes for the jury to find the American physician guilty of murdering his actress wife, Belle Elmore, whose mutilated body was found under the cellar floor of their house.

Crippen, in reply to the usual questions of Lord Alverstone if he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon him replied in a low voice: "I still protest my innocence."

When the Judge pronounced the death sentence, Crippen listened unmoved so far as outward appearances showed.

After the doctor was sentenced the foreman of the jury handed to the lord chief justice a note, after looking at which the justice said: "That shall be forwarded to the proper quarter."

The "proper quarter" might mean the home secretary, who has jurisdiction in such matters. The jurors refused to discuss the incident.

The trial of Ethel Levene Crippen's typist, as an accessory after the fact will begin at once.

PICK POSTAL BANK OFFICES

Trustees Name One Place in Each of Forty-eight States to Test Savings Plan.

Washington—The board of trustees of the postal savings bank system has approved a list of forty-eight second-class post offices at which the plan will be given its first trial.

The list includes one office for each state and territory. Among them are: Pekin, Ill.; Princeton, Ind.; Decorah, Ia.; Houghton, Mich.; Bemidji, Minn.; Nebraska City, Neb.; Watponton, N. D.; Ashtabula, O.; Deadwood, S. D.; Manitowoc, Wis.

This list of offices was selected after careful investigation by the postal officials with a view to making the first test of the service as thorough as possible under the limited appropriation of $100,000 provided by congress.

STATE HAPPENINGS

Reeseville—Calvin E. Baker, many years assistant in the high school here, is dead of Bright's disease and paralysis. Mr. Baker was born and reared in the town of Lowell, taught school for many years, was elected to many offices, and was one of the enumerators to take the last census. He served in the village council and was president of the school board for several years.

Stoughton—Plans for the proposed city sewerage system were approved by the common council. Four acres of land in the eastern portion of the city were purchased for septic sewage disposal tanks.

Madison—Gov. J. O. Davidson and C. M. Griffith, state forester, are to speak at the state forest conference of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan, to be held in St. Paul on December 6 and 7.

Racine—George H. Robinson, alias Wilson, said to be a dangerous burglar, wanted here for the burglary of the M. J. Hermans & Co cigar store, when $400 worth of pipes and cigar holders were stolen, in December, 1909, is under arrest at Chicago. The man is suspected of having also looted the Parish Fashion store.

Ripon—Minnie Tobolt was struck by a car being swatched on the Chicago & Northwestern track. One hand was severed and she received other injuries. She was taken to a hospital in Fond du Lac in an auto.

Kenosha—John Cook, a former Milwaukee man, employed in a hardware store here, became violently insane and is now being held. Cook threatened to kill several persons, and it was only after a hard struggle that he was captured.

Fond du Lac—Minnie Laura Cornelius, sociologist and Indian graduate of Grafton hall, has been employed to study the cause of the unusual amount of suicides among the Sae and Fox Indians in Iowa. She has made suicide a subject of study in New York and others of the largest cities in the United States and has written articles on the subject which have attracted much attention.

Soldiers Grove—D. C. Posey, a pioneer of Crawford county and a Mexican war veteran, is dead.

Rhineland—Forest fires fanned by high winds are burning east of here. Breathing is difficult because of the dense smoke. Farmers who burned rubbish in clearing land are blamed for starting the fires.

Fond du Lac—William Mauthe, a member of the Republican state committee, said that he would not support Levi H. Bancroft as the Republican nominee for attorney general.

Merrill—Papers in two damage suits against C. N. Johnson, publisher of the Merrill Daily Herald, each for $5,000, have been filed by F. W. Kubasta, postmaster, and Senator J. A. Wright. They charge libel.

Eau Claire—Iva Holght, residing near Chippewa Falls, and who has been confined in jail here for a week for stealing a watch, made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide in her cell, swallowing an antiseptic. A stomach pump was used and she is now out of danger.

Fox Lake—Martin Pisarek, retired farmer, sixty-seven years old, was found hanging dead in the barn of Michael Saxe, a neighbor. It is believed that Mr. Pisarek took his own life. He had been ill for some time, but about a week ago was discharged from a private sanitarium in Waukegan, his condition apparently much improved.

Kenosha—The Kenosha Municipal Water company paid off its entire bonded indebtedness amounting to $72,000. The bonds which were held by eastern investors were presented for payment here and the trust deed which has been on the plant will at once be cancelled. The original bonded indebtedness of the municipal plant was $134,000.

Eau Claire—A fatal conclusion came to the excursion of little Alton Wachute, aged thirteen years, and Walter Tilleson, ten years old, who started out to Elk Mound to shoot sparrows. Walter had a 22-caliber rifle. In some way it was accidentally discharged and the bullet struck Alton just above the heart. He died in five minutes.

Wausau—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mohr of this city will celebrate the golden anniversary of their wedding on October 28. Both were born in Germany. They came here in 1850. Up to ten years ago they resided in Cambria. Three generations will be represented at the family reunion. Mr. and Mrs. Mohr had ten children. All are living except three.

Chippewa Falls—A reunion of five brothers and sisters, all over seventy years of age, was held here this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Foster. Their ages range from seventy-one to eighty-three years and it is the first time the quintette has met for many years.

SYNOPSIS.

At a private view of the Chatworth personal estate, to be sold at auction, the Chatworth ring, known as the Crew Idol, mysteriously disappears. Harry Cressy, who was present, describes the ring to his fiancée, Flora Glasey, and her chaplain, Mrs. Clara Britton, as being like a heathen god, with a beautiful sapphire set in the head. Flora meets Mr. Kerr, an Englishman at the club. In discussing the disappearance of the ring, the exploits of an English thief, Farrell Wand, are recalled. Flora has a fancy that Harry and Kerr know something about the mystery. Kerr tells Flora that he has met Harry somewhere, but cannot place him. A $20,000 reward is offered for the return of the ring. Harry takes Flora to a Chinese goldsmith's to buy an engagement ring. An exquisite sapphire set in a hoop of brass is selected. Harry urges her not to keep it until it is reset. The possession of the ring seems to cast a spell over Flora. She becomes uneasy and apprehensive. Flora meets Kerr at a box party. She is startled to find that he has a glimpse of the sapphire. The possibility that the stone is part of the Crew Idol causes Flora much anxiety. Unseen, Flora discovers Clara packing her dressing room. Flora refuses to give or sell the stone to Kerr, and suspects him of being the thief. Flora's interest in Kerr increases. She decides to return the ring to Harry, but he tells her to keep it for a day or two. Ella Butler tells Flora that Clara is setting her cap for her father, Judge Butler. Flora believes Harry suspects Kerr.

CHAPTER XV.—(Continued.)

"But Judge Butler has already vouched for that man," she said quickly, "so he must be all right."

Kerr inclined his head to her with a smile.

"Butler is easily taken in," said Harry calmly. Under the direct, the insolent meaning of his look Flora felt her face grow hot—her hands cold. Harry could sit there taunting this man, hitting him over another man's back, and Kerr could not resent it. He could only sit—his head a little canted forward—looking at Harry with the traces of a dry smile upon his lips.

She thought the next moment everything would be declared. She sprang up, and, with an impulse for rescue, went to the door of the smoking-room. "Judge Butler," she called.

There was a sudden cessation of talk; a movement of forms dimly seen in the thick blue element; and then through wreaths of smoke, the judge's face dawned upon her like a sun through fog.

"Well, well, Miss Flora," he wanted to know, "to what bad action of mine do I owe this good fortune?"

She retreated, beckoning him to the middle of the room. "You owe it to the bad action of another," she said gayly. "Your friends are being slandered."

Harry made a movement as if he would have stopped her, and the expression of his face, in its alarm, was comic. But she paid no heed. She laid her hand on Harry's arm. "Mr. Kerr is just about to accuse us of being impostors," she announced. She had robbed the situation of its peril by gayly turning it exactly inside out. The judge blinked, puzzled at this extraordinary statement. Harry was disconcerted; but Kerr showed an astonishment that amazed her—a concern that she could not understand. He turned at her. Then he laughed rather shakily as he turned to her with a mock gallant bow.

"All women impose upon us, madam. And as for Mr. Cressy"—he fixed Harry with a look—"I could not accuse him of being an impostor since we have met in the sacred limits of St. James'."

The two glances that crossed before Flora's watchful eyes were keen as thrust and parry of rapiers. Harry bowed stiffly.

"I believe, for a fact, we did not meet, but I think I saw you there once—at some embassy ball."

The words rang, to Flora's ears, as if they had been shouted from the house-tops. In the speaking pause that followed there was audible an unknown hortatory voice from the smoking room.

"I tell you it's a damn-fool way to manage it! What's the good of twenty thousand dollars' reward?" Flora clutched nervously at the back of her chair. She seemed to see the danger of discovery piling up above Kerr like a mountain.

The judge chuckled. "You see what you saved me from. They've been at it hammer and tongs all the evening. Every man in town has his idea on that subject."

"For instance, what is that one?" Kerr's casual voice was in contrast to his guarded eyes.

The judge looked pleased. "That one? Why, that's my own—was, at least half an hour ago. You see, about that twenty-thousand-dollar proposition—" They moved nearer to him. They stood, the four, around the red velvet-covered table, like people waiting to be served. "The trouble is right here," said the judge emphasizing with blunt forefinger. "The crook has a pal. That's probable, isn't it?"

Harry nodded. Flora felt Kerr's eyes upon her, but she could not look at him.

"And we see the thing is at a dead-lock, don't we? Well, now," the judge went on triumphantly, "we know if any one person had the whole ring it would be turned in by this time. That is the weak spot in the reward policy. They didn't reckon on the thing's being split."

"Split? No, really, do you think that possible?" Kerr inquired, and Flora caught a glimmer of irony in his voice.

"Well, can you see one of the chaps trusting the other with more than half of it?" The judge was scornful. "And a fellow needs a whole ring if he is after a reward." He rolled his head waggishly. "Oh, I could have been a crook myself!" he chuckled, but his was the only smiling face in the party.

For Kerr's was pale, schooled to a rigid self-control.

And Harry's was crimson and swollen, as if with a sudden rush of blood. His twitching hands, his sullen eyes, responded to Judge Butler's last word as if it had been an accusation.

"It makes me damned sick, the way you fellows talk—as if it was the easiest thing in the world to—" He broke off. It was such a tone, loose, harsh and uncontrolled, as made Flora shrink.

As if he sensed that movement in her, he turned upon her furiously.

"Well, are we going to stand here all night?" He took her by the arm.

She felt as if he had struck her. Butler was staring at him, but Kerr had opened the door through which she had entered, and now, turning his back upon Harry, silently motioned her out.

She had a moment's fear that Harry's grasp, even then, wouldn't let go. Indeed, for a moment he stood clutching her, as if, now that his rage had spent itself, she was the one thing he could hold to. Then she felt his fingers loosen. He stood there alone, looking, with his great bulk, and his great strength, and his abashed bewilderment, rather pathetic.

But that aspect reached her dimly, for the fear of him was uppermost. Her arm still burned where he had grasped it. She moved away from him toward the door Kerr had opened for her. She passed from the light of the crimson room into the dark of the passage. Some one followed her and closed the door. Some one caught step with her. It was Kerr. He bent his dark head to speak low.

"I don't know why you did it, you quixotic child, but you must not expose yourself in this way, for any reason whatsoever."

The light of the crowded rooms burst upon them again.

"Oh," she turned to him beseechingly, "can't you get me away?"

"Surely." His manner was as if nothing had happened. His smile was reassuring. "I'll call your carriage, and find Mrs. Britton."

When Flora came down from the dressing-room she found Clara already in the carriage, and Kerr mounting guard in the hall. As he handed her in, Clara leaned forward.

"Where is Mr. Cressy?" she inquired.

"He sent his apologies," Kerr explained. "He is not able to get away just now."

Flora lay back in the carriage. She was dimly aware of Clara's presence beside her, but for the moment Clara had ceased to be a factor. The shape that filled all the foreground of her thought was Harry. He loomed alarming to her imagination—all the more so since, for the moment, he had seemed to lose his grip. That was another thing she could not quite understand. That burst of violent irritation following, as it had, Judge Butler's words! If Kerr had been the speaker it would have been natural enough, since all through this interview Harry's evident antagonism had seemed strained to the snapping point.

But poor Judge Butler had been harmless enough. He had been merely theorizing. But—wait! She made so sharp a movement that Clara looked at her. The judge's theory might be close to facts that Harry was cognizant of.

For herself she had had no way of finding out how the sapphire had got adrift. But hadn't Harry? Hadn't he followed up that singular scene with the blue-eyed Chinaman by other visits to the goldsmith's shop? Why, yesterday, when he was supposed to be in Burlington, Clara had seen him in Chinatown. The idea burst upon then. Harry was after the whole ring. He counted the part she held already his, and for the rest he was groping in Chinatown; he was trying to reach it through the imperturbable little goldsmith. But he had not reached it yet—and she could read his irritation at his failure in his violent outburst when Judge Butler so innocently bungled the difficulties in his face. She knew as much now as she could hear. If Harry did not suspect Kerr, it would be strange. But—Harry waiting to make sure of a reward before he unmasked a thief! It was an ugly thought!

And would he wait for the rest now—now that the situation was so galling to him? Might not he just decide to take the sapphire, and with the evidence of that, risk his putting his hand on the "Idol" when he grasped the thief?

The carriage was stopping. Clara was making ready to get out. She braced herself to face Clara in the light with a casual exterior—but when she had reached her own rooms, she sank in a heap in the chair before her writing-table, and laid her head upon the table between her arms.

In her wretchedness she found her self turning to Kerr. How stoically he had endured it all, though it must have borne on him most heavily! How kind he had been to her! He had not even spoken of himself, though he must have known the shadows were closing over his head.

"I Mean It, I Mean It," He Assured Her.

In the gray hours of the morning she wrote him. She dared not put the perils into words, but she implied them. She vaguely threatened; and she implored him to go, avoiding them all, herself more than any; and, quaking at the possibility that he might, after all, overcome her, she declared that before he went she would not see him again. She closed with the forbidden statement that whether he stayed or went, at the end of three days she would make a sure disposal of the ring. She put all this in reckless black and white and sent it by the hand of Shima. Then she waited. She waited, in her little isolation, with the sapphire always hung about her neck, waited with what anticipation of marvelous results—avowals, ideal farewells, or possibly some incredible transformation of the grift face of the business. And the answer was silence.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Heart of the Dilemma. There is, in the heart of each gale of events, a storm center of quiet. It is the very deadlock of contending forces, in which the individual has space for breath and apprehension. Into this lull Flora fell panting from her last experience, more frightened by the false calm than by the whirlwind that had landed her there. Now she had time to mark the echoes of the storm about her, and to realize her position.

From the middle of her calm she saw many inexplicable appearances. She saw them everywhere, from the small round of Clara's movement to the larger wheel of the public aspect. Clara was taking tea with the Butlers, and the papers had ceased to mention the Crew Idol.

It had not even been a nine days' wonder. It had not dwindled. It had simply dropped from headlines to nothing; and after the first murmur of astonishments at this strange vanishing, after a little vain conjecture as to the reason of it, the subject dropped out of the public mouth. The silence was so sudden it was like a suppression. To Flora it shadowed some forces working so secretly, so surely, that they had extinguished the light of publicity. They must be going on with concentrated and terrible activity in cycles, which perhaps had not yet touched her.

So, seeing Maj. Purdie among the crowd at some one's "afternoon" where she was pouring tea, she looked up at his cheerful face and high bald dome with a passionate curiosity. He knew why the press had been extinguished, and what they were doing in the dark. She knew where the sapphire was—and where the culprit was to be found. And to think that they could tell each other, if they would, each a tale the other would hardly dare believe. Amazing appearances! How far away, how foreign from the facts they covered! But Maj. Purdie had the best of it. He at least was doing his duty. He was standing stiffly on one side, while she hesitated between, trying desperately to push Kerr out of sight before she dared uncover the jewel. But he wouldn't move. In spite of all she had done, he wouldn't.

Across the room that very afternoon she caught the twinkle of his resisting smile. He had had her letter then for two days, and still he had come here, though he'd been bidden to stay away; though he had been warned to keep away from all places where she, or these people around her, might find him; though he had been implored to go, finally, as far away as the round surface of the world would let him.

By what he had heard and seen in the red room that night, he must know her warning had not been ridiculous. And there was another threat less apparent on the surface of things, but evident enough to her. It was the change in Clara after she had begun her attack on the Butlers, her appearance of being busy with something, absorbed with, intent upon, something, which, if she had not secured it yet, at least she had well in reach. And that thing—suppose it had to do with the Crew Idol; and suppose Clara should play into Harry's hands?

For Kerr's escape Flora had been holding the ring, fighting off events, and yet all the while she had not wanted to lose the sight of him. Well, now, when she had made up her mind finally to resign herself to the dreariness of that, might he not at least have done his part of it and decently disappeared? So much he might have done for her.

He was playing her own trick on her, but her chances for getting at him again were fewer than his had been with her. She could not besiege him in his abode; and in the places where they met, large houses crowded with people, the eye of the world was upon her. For how long had she forgotten it—she who had been all her life so deferential toward it! Even now she remembered it only because it interfered with what she wanted to do.

For the eye of her small society was very keenly upon Kerr. She realized, all at once, that he had become a personage; and then, by smiles, by lifted eyebrows, by glances, she gathered that her name was being linked with his. She was astonished. How could their luncheon together at the Purdies', their words that night in the opera box, their few minutes' talk in the shop, have crystallized into this gossip? It vexed her—alarmed her, how it had got about when she had seen him so seldom, had known him scarcely more than a week. It was simply in the air. It was in her attitude and in his, but how far it had gone she did not dream, until in the dense crowd of some one's at-home she caught the words of a young girl. The voice was so sweet and so prettily modulated that at its first notes Flora turned involuntarily to glimpse the speaker, a slender creature in a delicate mist of muslin, with an indeterminate chin and the cheek of a pale peach.

"Just think," Flora heard her saying, "he went to see her three times in two days, but to-day, did you notice, he wouldn't look at her until she went up and spoke to him. I don't see how a girl can! Harry Cressy—"

She moved away and the words were lost. Flora looked after her. For the moment she felt only scorn for the creatures who had clapped that interpretation upon her great responsibility. These people around her seemed poor indeed, absorbed only in petty considerations, and seeing everything down the narrow vista of the "correct." Her eyes followed the young girl's course through the room, easy to trace by her shining blond head, and the unusual deliciousness of her muslin gown. She stopped beside two women, and with a certain sense of pleasure and embarrassment Flora recognized one of them—Mrs. Herrick. She caught the lady's eye and bowed. Mrs. Herrick smiled, with a gracious inclination in which her graceful shoulders had a part.

It gave Flora the sense Mrs. Herrick's presence always brought her, of protection, of security, and the possibility of friendship finer than she had ever known. She started forward. But Mrs. Herrick, presenting instantly her profile, drew the young girl's hand through her arm and moved away.

Flora winced as if she had received a blow. The other people who had heard the same gossip of her had been, on account of it, all the more amused and anxious to talk to her.

She felt herself judged—judged from the outside, it is true—but still there was justice in it. She had been flying in the face of custom, ignoring common good behavior, in short, sticking to her own convictions in defiance of the world's. And she must pay the penalty—the loss of the possibility of such a friend.

But it was hard, she thought, to pay the price without getting the thing she had paid for. It was more like a gamble in which she staked all on a chance. And never had this chance appeared more improbable to her than now. For if Kerr valued the ring more than he valued his safety, what argument was left her?

CHAPTER XVII.

The Demigod.

On the third day she opened her eyes to the sun with the thought: Where is he? From the windows of her room she could see the two pale points and the narrow way of water that led into the western ocean. Had he sailed out yonder west into the east, into that oblivion which was his only safety, for ever out of her sight? Or was he still at hand, ignoring warning, defying fate?

She drew out the sapphire and held it in her hand. The cloud of events had cast no film over its luster, but she looked at it now without pleasure. For all its beauty it wasn't worth what they were doing for it. Well, to-day they were both of them to see the last of it. To-day she was going to take it to Mr. Purdie, to deliver it into his hands, to tell him how it had fallen into hers in the goldsmith's shop—all of the story that was possible for her to tell.

She had made it out all clear in her mind that this was the right thing to do. It hadn't occurred to her she had made it out only on the hypothesis of Kerr's certainly going. It had not occurred to her that she might have to make her great moral move in the dark; or, what was worse, in the face of his most gallant resistance. In this discouraging light she saw her intention dwindle to the vanishing point, but the great move was just as good as it had been before—just as solid, just as advisable. Being so very solid, wouldn't it wait until she had time to show him that she really meant what she said, supposing she ever had a chance to see him again? The possibility that at this moment he might actually have gone had almost escaped her. She recalled it with a disagreeable shock, but, after all, that was the best she could hope, never to see him again! She ought to be grateful to be sure of that, and yet if she were, oh, never could she deprive him of so much beauty and light by her keeping of the sapphire as he would then have taken away from her!

She would come down then, indeed, level with plainest, palest, hardest things—people and facts. Her romance—she had seen it; she had had it in her hands, and it had somehow eluded her. It had vanished, evaporated.

She leaned and looked through the thin veil of her curtains at the splendid day. It was one of February's freaks. It was hot. The white ghost of noon lay over shore and sea. Beneath her the city seemed to sleep gray and glistening. The tops of hills that rose above the up-creeching houses were misted green. Across the bay, along the northern shore, there was a pale green coast of hills dividing blue and blue. Ships in the bay hung out white canvas drying, and the sky showed whiter clouds, slow-moving, like sails upon a languid sea.

She looked down upon all, as lone and lonely as a deserted lady in a tower, lifted above these happy, peaceful things by her strange responsibility. Her thoughts could not stay with them; her eyes traveled seaward. She parted the curtains and, leaning a little out, looked westward at the white sea gate.

oval of her garden. She hung over the window-sill. She looked directly down upon him, foreshortened to a face, and even with the distance and the broad glare of noon between them she recognized his aspect—his gayest, of diabolic glee. There lurked about him the impish quality of the whistle that had summoned her.

"Come down," he called.

All sorts of wonders and terrors were beating around her. He had transcended her wildest wish; he had come to her more openly, more daringly, more romantically than she could have dreamed. All the amazement of why and how he had braved the battery of the windows of her house was swallowed up in the greater joy of seeing him there, standing in his "grays," with stiff black hat pushed off his hot forehead, hands behind him, looking up at her from the middle of anemones and daffodils.

"Come down," he called again, and waved at her with his slim, glittering stick. How far he had come since their last encounter, to wave at and command her, as if she were verily his own! She left the window, left the room, ran quickly down the stair. The house was hushed; no passing but her own, no butler in the hall, no kitchen-maid on the back stair. Only grim faces of pictures—ancestors and her own—glimmered reproachful upon her as she fled past. Light echoes called her back along the hall. The furniture, the muffling curtains, her own reflections flying through the mirrors, held up to her her madness, and by their mute stability seemed to remind her of the shelter she was leaving—seemed to forbid.

She ran. This was not shelter; it was prison. He was rescue; he was light itself. The only chance for her was to get near enough to him. Near him no shadow lived. The thing was to get near enough. She rushed direct from shadow into light. She came out into the sun, into the garden with its blaze of wintry summer, its whispering life and the free air over it. The man standing in the middle of it, for all his pot hat and Gothic stick, was none the less its demigod waiting for her, laughing. He might well laugh that she who had written that unfinishing letter should come thus flying at his call; but there was more than mischief in him. The high tide of his spirits was only the sparkle of his excitement. It was evident that he was there with something of mighty importance to say.

Was it that her letter had finally touched him? Had he come at last to transcend her idea with some even greater purpose? She seemed to see the power, the will for that and the kindness—she could not call it by another word—but though she was beseeching him with all her silent attitude to tell her instantly what the great thing was, he kept it back a moment, looking at her whimsically, indulgently, even tenderly.

"I have come for you," he said.

"Oh, for me!" she murmured. Surely he couldn't mean that! He was simply putting her off with that.

"I mean it, I mean it," he assured her. "This doesn't make it any less real, my getting at you through a garden. Better," he added, "and sweet of you to make the duller way impossible."

She took a step back. It had not been play to her; but he would have it nothing else. He, too, stepped back and away from her.

"Come," he said, and behind him she saw the lower garden gate that opened on the grassy pitch of the hill, swinging idle and open. The sight of him about to vanish lured her on, and as he continued to walk backward she advanced, following.

"Oh, where?" she pleaded.

"With me." Such a guaranty of good faith he made it!

She tried to summon her reluctance.

"But why?"

"We'll talk about it as we go along." His hand was on the gate. "We can't stop here, you know. She'll be watching us from the window."

Flora glanced behind her. The windows were all discreetly draped—most likely ambush—but that she should apprehend Clara's eyes behind them! Ah, then, he did know what he was about! He saw Clara as she did. She would almost have been ready to trust him on the strength of that alone. Still she hung back.

"But my things!" she protested.

She held up her garden hat. "And my gown!" She looked down at her frail silk slounces. Was ever any woman seen on the street like this!

"Oh, la, la, la," he cut her short. "We can't stop to dress the part. You'll forget 'em."

She smiled at him suddenly, looked back at the house, put on her hat—the garden hat. The moment she had dreaded was upon her. In spite of her warning reason, in spite of everything, she was going with him.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

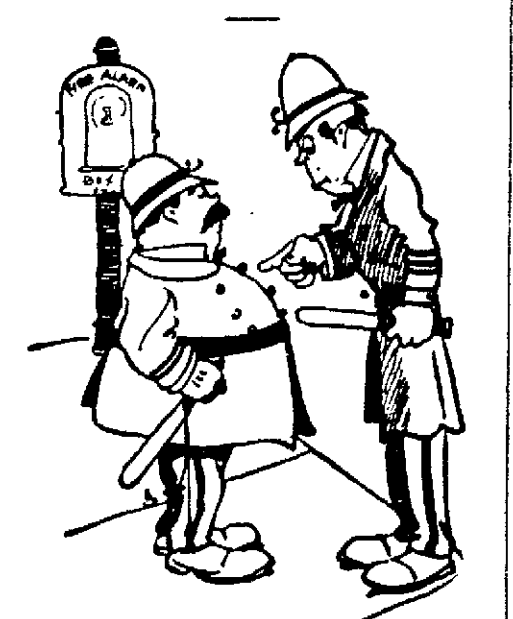

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby."—Mrs. Anna Anderson, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.
No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

EMPTY ADVICE.

Mike—Shure, Oi feel very queer, Dan. Oi have such a feel av fullness after me meals. Do yez know a rimidy fur that?

Dan—Oi do, me boy. Whin yez sit down to ate a meal, don't ate any.

Mike—But thin Oi shud be full av amptness!

The Most Noticeable Change.

"So you have lived in Europe for 25 years? That's a long time for a man to be away from his own country."

"Yes, it is, and I'm mighty glad to be home again."

"I suppose you notice a great many changes?"

"Yes, many."

"What, if I may ask, is the greatest change that has come to your notice?"

"The greatest change, it seems to me, is to be found in the fact that the vice-president of the United States succeeds in getting his name in the papers nearly as often as he might if he were a baseball player or a promising lightweight prizefighter."

Now He Knows.

"On what grounds does your father object to me?" he asked.

"On any grounds within a mile of our house," she answered.

It seems as though women's styles change so often merely to keep men's noses down to the grindstone.

A woman hates her enemies longer than she loves her friends.

TO WASH ECRU CURTAINS

First Lay in Cold Water, Then Pass to Bath of Warm Water and Borax.

First shake free from dust and, if possible, hang up out of doors to dislodge as much more of the dust as possible, as this will save labor when it comes to washing. Next lay in cold water until it looks dark and brown looking; then wring and pass into a bath, which you have prepared of warm water, soap and a little borax. The quantity of the latter will depend upon the degree of hardness of the water. Lift the curtains up and down in this bath and squeeze through the hands. Use only a good white soap and do not rub it directly on the curtains. If you do the result will be white patches, because the soap will probably take out a little of the color.

When the curtains are clean rinse first in warm water and then in cold. If the shade has become lighter the curtains may be put through a last rinsing water, to which strong tea has been added. An objection to the tea tint is that the sun is apt to fade the color when the curtains are hung at the windows, creating ugly streaks, as curtains do not fade all over alike.

Boiled or raw starch may be used when the curtains are ready for the stretchers or for pinning to the line. Take care to see that all edges are perfectly straight and even.

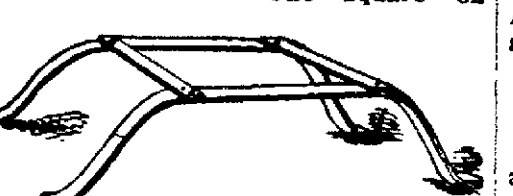

Some persons sew a pair of curtains together before washing, and unless they are very heavy it would seem to be a good plan, because then they will hang exactly the same when taken apart and placed at the windows.

STAND FOR A WASH BOILER

Convenient Article That is Easily Made and Well Worth the Trouble.

To make a stand for an iron wash boiler when wishing to heat water out of doors, take an old wagon tire or other similar pieces of iron and bend as shown in the accompanying illustration.

The legs can be made of any desired length so the wood can be placed underneath. The square on top should just fit the bottom of the boiler. The two cross bars are riveted or bolted. For a round kettle the top of the stand should be round and just large enough to hold the kettle securely.

The stand is a most convenient article in preparing meals when camping out, as skillets and pots can be placed upon it.

Fried Rye Muffins.

Serve these muffins with some kind of acid or sharply flavored jelly. Sift together three-quarters cup of rye meal, that was sifted before measuring, three-quarters cup of flour, two level teaspoons of baking powder and a saltspoon of salt. Beat one egg, add half a cup of milk and turn on to the dry materials. Drop in small spoonfuls in hot fat and fry like doughnuts. Do not make the cakes too large, as they will be liable to fry brown on the outside before the centers are heated through.

Sparerib Pie.

Take two pounds of spareribs, have them cut small, wash, and place them over the fire with water enough to cover. Should be skimmed, then add one onion, salt and pepper. Cook 15 minutes, then add six potatoes sliced, more water if needed. Let cook until all is tender, thicken with a little flour. Place in a pan and cover with plain pie crust. Bake in a pan and cover with plain pie crust. Bake in quick oven.

To Cook Corn.

With a sharp knife cut the corn from the cob. Don't cut it to the cob, but about three-quarters, then scrape with the knife the one-quarter remaining on the cob into the same dish. Plenty of butter, salt and pepper. Add no water, just the liquor from the scraped corn, and moisten. Put it in double boiler and cook 20 minutes. You get the fine flavor of the corn cooked without water.

Lemon Sauce.

Boil together for five minutes one-half of a cupful of sugar and one cupful of water, add one tablespoonful of cornstarch and cook for five minutes longer. Take from the fire, add the juice of one lemon and two tablespoonfuls of butter and stir until thoroughly blended.

Caper Butter.

Chop one tablespoon of capers very fine, rub through a sieve with a wooden spoon and mix them with a saltspoon of pepper and one ounce (or more) of cold butter. Put a layer of this butter on a dish and serve fish on it.

Apple Butter.

Apple butter made from apple pulp. Run the apple pulp through a sieve and add sugar and spices to taste. Boil 30 minutes slowly.

Was Getting Monotonous.

A handsome woman who had been so unfortunate as to find occasion to divorce not one but several husbands was returning from Nevada. In Chicago she happened to meet her first husband, for whom, by the way, she always has entertained a real affection.

"Upon my soul, if it isn't Charlie!" exclaimed the ex-wife, cordially shaking hands with the gentleman whose name she had formerly borne. "I'm awfully glad to see you, Charlie!" Then, after a wistful expression had come to and been banished from her countenance, she added:

"Old chap, I've often wondered where you were and what you were doing. It was too bad we didn't get on better together. I hope your experience hasn't been as unpleasant as mine. I'm sick and tired of marrying strangers!"

Deadlock.

"Who is that man who has been sitting behind the bar day after day?" inquired the stranger in Crimson Gulch.

"That's Stage Coach Charley. He's in a peculiar predicament. He went to town last week and got his teeth fixed. Then he came here, and, beln' broke, ran up a bill on the strength of his seven dollars' worth of gold fillin'. Charley won't submit to havin' the nuggets pried out an' the proprietor won't let him git away with the collateral, and there you are!"

As he looked at her, with no indication of a coming answer, the teacher put her hand up to her neck. PROMINENT PEOPLE

PRESIDENT OF PORTUGAL

Theophile Braga, provisional president of Portugal, in an interview, emphasizes what he calls the "philosophical" source of the revolution.

The men who have been spreading the doctrines of republicanism, he says, are professors, mathematicians, writers and generally men of learning. The result, he thinks, is, first of all, a victory for the cause of "education"—an effort to restore the Portuguese people to the intellectual rank lost for so long a time.

"It is our aim," he says, "to show the Portuguese as a race of the elite, both physically and intellectually. It is our greatest honor by an admirable revolution to demonstrate to the world that the Portuguese are worthy of their ancestors."

From the names announced of the provisional government the "intellectuals," the idealist republicans who dream of making Portugal worthy of her former glory, have carried through this movement, or at any rate are for the moment in control. Putting Theophile Braga, the one Portuguese scholar of international reputation, at their head, is a shrewd move on the part of the revolutionists. It follows the curious Latin fashion of bestowing political power on literary men, but it also declares to Europe that the true men of progress, the men of education and of position, are directing the revolution, and not the street rabble of Lisbon. Among Senhor Braga's colleagues are many college professors, while military and naval men are noticeably absent.

Dr. Theophile Braga is a man about fifty-five years old and a graduate of a leading European university. He began the practise of medicine in Lisbon when a young man and has been prominent throughout Portugal for many years past.

About three years ago Dr. Braga identified himself with the intellectual wing of the Republican party and became president of the committee of seven of that organization. In this office he wielded great political power, and his undoubted honesty and well-known integrity won many supporters for the party which was destined to obtain control of affairs. He was long associated with Dr. Bernardino Machado, one of the foremost professors of the Lisbon university.

LEADS NEW YORK DEMOCRATS

John A. Dix, the Democratic nominee for governor in New York, is a prosperous business man and interested in various corporations. He was born at Glens Falls in 1860. He was educated at the academy there, and entered Cornell university in the class of 1882, but left in his junior year. In 1889 he married Miss Gertrude Allen Thomson, the daughter of a lumber merchant. He began his business career as a member of the firm of Reynolds & Dix, dealers in black marble, and later became associated with Lemont Thomson in the lumber business.

Mr. Dix is not unfamiliar with politics, however, being chairman of the Democratic state committee and a former candidate for lieutenant-governor, when he ran with Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler in 1908. Even prior to that time, in 1906, when William R. Hearst was nominated for governor at Buffalo the name of John A. Dix went before the convention and he received some complimentary votes.

Mr. Dix comes of a noted family and is a great-grandnephew of Gen. John A. Dix, former Republican governor of the state, who while serving as secretary of the treasury early in 1861, issued the famous order, familiar since from ocean to ocean: "If any man attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot." Mr. Dix is heavily interested in wall paper factories and also in lumbering and banking and has had a successful business career.

His work in creating a county chairman's organization won him the nomination for lieutenant-governor two years ago. He favored them, and does now, a system whereby the power of the county chairman should be more absolute than at present.

After his unsuccessful campaign two years ago Mr. Dix certified to the secretary of state that he contributed $3,983.50 for campaign expenses, of which $2,500 went to the state committee.

IS ESTEEMED BY QUEEN MARY

The beautiful Lady Lister-Kaye, who was Nacua Yznaga, the youngest of the three charming Yznaga sisters of New York, is one American resident in England who need have no fear for her position in society or of her reception by royalty. For some time speculation has been rife as to the social fate of the American women in King George's reign. There is a general feeling that for a while at least they will be much less conspicuous at court than they were during the late King Edward's regime. However, Lady Lister-Kaye is sure of her standing and knows that she will be quite welcome at Buckingham palace.

This gracious daughter of America is a sister of the late Dowager Duchess of Manchester (Consuelo Yznaga), who was one of King Edward's most esteemed confidants and with whom her friendship was of long duration. Unlike many of the late ruler's associates the dowager duchess was a close friend of Queen Alexandra and held a prominent place in all things social in the royal set. Lady Lister-Kaye was not only highly regarded by the late king and Queen Alexandra, but she has enjoyed the warm friendship of Queen Mary for several years, which is somewhat unusual, as Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra have few friends in common. While the queen was princess of Wales she honored this American woman conspicuously by dining in her home several times. Beyond these personal ties is the fact that her husband, Sir John Lister-Kaye, is a groom-in-waiting upon King George.

Though certain of the residents in the American colony in London may not be in first favor in royal society this winter, Lady Lister-Kaye will not be denied her position and, as has been the case for many years past, a member of the Yznaga family will be prominent in the social affairs of royalty.

LOS ANGELES TIMES' OWNER

Gen. Harrison Gray Otis is the owner and editor of the Los Angeles Times, the building and plant of which was recently wrecked by an explosion attributed to enemies of the paper.

General Otis was born near Marietta, Ohio, February 10, 1837. With the breaking out of the Civil war he enlisted as a private in the Twelfth Ohio infantry, June 25, 1861. He was made a second lieutenant November 12, 1862, and a first lieutenant May 20, 1863. He was transferred to the Twenty-third Ohio infantry July 1, 1864, and made a captain July 25, 1864. He was breveted a major and lieutenant colonel March 13, 1865, for gallant and meritorious service during the war and was honorably mustered out July 26, 1865. He was twice wounded during the war.

In 1866-67 General Otis was official reporter for the Ohio house of representatives and was foreman of the government printing office 1868-69. During 1870 and 1876 he was chief of a division in the United States patent office, and special agent of the United States treasury in charge of the seal islands of Alaska, 1879-81.

General Otis was appointed a brigadier general of the United States volunteers May 27, 1898, and placed in command of the First brigade, Second division of the Eighth army corps, in the Philippine islands. He led the brigade at the capture of Calocan, February 10, 1899. He was breveted a major general of volunteers March 25, 1899, and honorably discharged July 2, 1899. He entered journalism in California thirty-three years ago.

NATURAL ACT FOR MOTHER

Women Understand That Not Heroes, but Simply Love Prompted Self Sacrifice.

A few days ago, in a somewhat squalid neighborhood, a house caught fire. The flames shot quickly through the litter on the floor and the untidy array of clothing on the walls. A woman talking with a neighbor ran screaming to the house and without an instant's hesitation sprang through the smoking doorway into what already seemed an inferno. A moment later she staggered out, her hands and face blackened and blistered and her clothing on fire. In her arms she bore her baby, safe from harm.

The afternoon papers came out with the story, printed under headlines extolling this mother's heroism. Men read it on street cars, and as their eyes gleamed with the stirring of the spirit which leaps to greet noble deeds they said: "That woman dared to do what most men would be afraid to do." But the mothers who read it at home did not think that way. Perhaps the danger to the baby, the wrecking of the home and the burns the woman suffered brought moisture to their eyes, but to them the act was not one of heroism—it was simply what any natural mother, no matter how timid, would do under the same circumstances.—Cleveland Leader.

REST AND PEACE

Fall Upon Distracted Households When Cuticura Enters.

Sleep for skin tortured babies and rest for tired, fretted mothers is found in a hot bath with Cuticura Soap and a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment. This treatment, in the majority of cases, affords immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning, scaly, and crusted humors, eczema, rashes, inflammations, irritations, and chafings, of infancy and childhood, permits rest and sleep to both parent and child, and points to a speedy cure, when other remedies fail. Worn-out and worried parents will find this pure, sweet and economical treatment realizes their highest expectations, and may be applied to the youngest infants as well as children of all ages. The Cuticura Remedies are sold by druggists everywhere. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, Mass., for their free 32-page Cuticura Book on the care and treatment of skin and scalp of infants, children and adults.

Completely Pauperized.

Albert W. Hebbard, New York's charity expert, said at a recent dinner.

"The great danger of charity is its pauperizing effect. This effect must be avoided, or the recipients will all become Jack Hanches.

"Jack Hanch, on the score of bad health never worked, and the pastor of the Methodist church, a man whose heart sometimes outran his head, sent the idler and his family weekly gifts of food and clothing—supported the whole crew, in fact.

"A church visitor, after listening to Jack's complaints one day, said:

"Yes, of course, you have had bad health, we know that; but one thing at least you ought to be thankful for, and that is our pastor's kindness in sending you all this bread and meat and jelly and blankets and so on. Don't you think it is good of him to look after you so well?"

"Good of him?" said Jack, impatiently. "Why, what's he for?"

Fable of Pan of Biscuits.

A Vassar girl married a Kansas farmer.

Two weeks later a cyclone made the happy pair a friendly call.

It cavorted around the premises, ripping up the fences, scattering the haystacks and playing horse with the barn, but when it looked through the open window it drew back in alarm.

There lay the bride's first pan of biscuits.

"I ain't feelin' very strong this morning," murmured the cyclone.

And with another glance at the terrible pan it blew itself away.

WISE WORDS.

A Physician on Food.

A physician, of Portland, Oregon, has views about food. He says: "I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not cease with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to protect their health, especially by hygienic and dietetic laws.

"With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying to the public that in my own experience and also from personal observation I have found no food equal to Grape-Nuts, and that I find there is almost no limit to the great benefits this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence.

"It is my experience that no physical condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts. To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach, especially at breakfast, to start the machinery of the human system on the day's work.

"In cases of indigestion I know that a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts and cream and I think it is not advisable to overload the stomach at the morning meal. I also know the great value of Grape-Nuts when the stomach is too weak to digest other food.

"This is written after an experience of more than 20 years, treating all manner of chronic and acute diseases, and the letter is written voluntarily on my part without any request for it." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in page "There's a Reason."

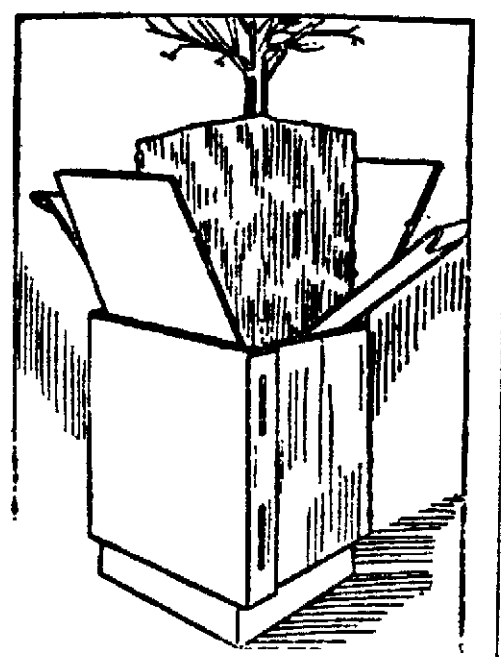

HORTICULTURE

FOR USE IN TRANSPLANTING

Inner Receptacle in Box Lifts Out and Sides Fall Away—Mandy for Gardener.

A device to facilitate the transplanting of flowers and bushes has been designed by a Minnesota woman. It enables the gardener—particularly the amateur gardener—to remove plants from their pots or boxes without injury either to the roots of the former or to the latter. The invention mentioned comprises a box with an inner and an outer shell. The outer shell has not bottom and merely fits around the inner receptacle to support the sides which are hinged at the bottom and would otherwise fall open. The inner shell has a bottom and the sides are adapted to be bent over at the top to engage the tops of the sides of the outer member. The whole apparatus must be together when the bush is planted in it. When the husk has grown to a size that makes transplanting necessary, all that need be done is to lift the inner receptacle out of that which holds it together and the sides fall away and leaves the plant, with the earth clinging to its roots, ready to be installed in the ground. With the old-fashioned flower pot the removal of a plant often resulted in damage to the latter of breaking of the pot.

SPHINX DOES LITTLE HARM

Large Apple-Green Caterpillar Feeds on Leaves of Different Fruit Trees.

The large apple-green caterpillar or apple sphinx is easily recognized by the seven oblique whitish or yellowish stripes, margined with purplish red, and the brown vertical stripe on each side of the head. This caterpillar, when full grown, is about two and one-half inches long, and bears a rather conspicuous horn similar to that of the common tobacco worm at the posterior extremity of the body, says Country Gentleman. This species feeds upon the leaves of apple, pear and ash and the wax myrtle, Myrica. It is rarely abundant enough to cause any material injury.

FLOWER BOXES IN WINDOWS

Nothing So Softens and Beautifies Stiff-Looking House—Plants Should Be Watered Daily.

(By RUTH MARSH.)

Nothing so softens and beautifies a stiff-looking house—or any other kind for that matter—as window boxes.

Make a box eight inches deep and ten inches wide. Use only rich black soil to fill it. A bucket full of fertilizer worked into the soil will improve it.

Fill the box level full and then let it stand for a week. Then stir up the soil to loosen it and plant.

Ferns should be planted in the rear of the box. Between them place geraniums, red or pink preferred.

In the front of these plant a row of purple ageratum seed and for good measure mix in a few of candytuft.

For a front row, plant sweet alyssum. The alyssum will fall over the front of the box and form a pretty border.

Give the plants plenty of room to grow and they will make a better appearance than many in one box, stunted for lack of room.

For a large porch box, with plenty of room, a few dwarf nasturtiums may take the place of the sweet alyssum.

Other flowers suitable for boxes are pansies, marigolds and low growing plants.

When the plants, raised from seeds, are an inch high thin them out to about two inches apart.

The box should be watered daily morning and evening, especially if it is exposed to the sun all day.

TREES SOFTEN SEVERE WINDS

Evergreens Planted on West Side of Yards and Buildings Break Force of Windy Blasts.

A double row of evergreens as a windbreak is of equal value for protection with a board fence of the same height. The general method of planting evergreens around feed yards, houses, gardens and small fruit orchards is to plant the trees in double or triple rows, so that there will be no space between the trees for the wind to find its way through.

When planted on the west side of the yards or buildings they soften the rigors of winter and add many dollars worth of value to the appearance of the farm.

A large number have been unsuccessful in growing these trees, but with proper care and the right methods of starting the young trees it is quite easy to start an evergreen tree.

The only condition of success is that their roots must be kept moist.

Foreign varietals, when imported, are not so sure to thrive and do as well as the native trees. When trees of small size are started they should be set in small beds convenient for watering in case of drought, and shaded with brush or cornstalks a few inches high—above the tops of the plants—covering the surface with leaves or straw or old hay—also a covering of the tops of the young plants in winter will insure their wintering in good condition.

When they are firmly established with new and fibrous roots they are ready to be set out for good, and it will be found best to set in rows about six feet apart and from three to four feet in the row and give good care and cultivation as would be given a garden for two or three years until the trees shade the ground.

In all cases cultivate well the fore part of the season and keep down the weeds and grass. By close planting an upright growth is procured, and as the trees become too thick they may be thinned out and the best ones left until they have obtained their growth.

Nut trees are also worthy the attention of all farmers and in many cases they will be found profitable to the grower and easy to get started.

Black walnut, chestnut, hickory, and butternut trees are propagated by gathering the nuts in the fall before they have become dry and mixing them with a layer of dirt of a depth so that they will not freeze, and planting in April in nicely prepared ground as deep as the diameter of the nut, either where they are to grow or in a row in the garden—in the latter case they should be taken up the first winter and buried beyond the power of the frost.

If one-half of the tap roots are pruned before setting the young trees, the lateral roots will put forth a more vigorous growth and the trees are more sure to make a good, healthy growth.

It is to be hoped that trees of this kind will receive more attention in the future than they have in the past, as there are few farms that do not have fence rows or waste lands that could be made useful by planting to some variety of nut bearing trees.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES

The world can never have too many apples.

Soil for peach growing should be a good warm, sandy loam type.

Whenever you find cross branches rubbing each other cut one of them out.

Careful selection is more than half the battle in the keeping of fruit over winter.

See that the ladders are safe before using them. Unsafe rounds may mean broken legs.

The main reason why fruit does not keep well is because wormy and rotten fruit is stored with it.

The high-headed tree is easier cultivated, but the low-headed tree makes the fruit picking easier.

The ground dries out more quickly under a high-headed tree and more fruit is blown off by the wind.

The jar of springless wagons, or of the sleds used in some localities, has caused more damage to fruit than growers realize.

No matter how still the day, better take down your ladders at night. The wind may come up before morning and spoil a good ladder in no time.

Flowers should have a friable, very fertile soil in which to grow. They often make a brave display in rather poor soil but they appreciate good care.

Plenty of stable manure cultivation and judicious pruning will, almost without exception, bring back to bearing an old orchard that seems to be beyond hope.

Some of the late blooming plants, such as asters and nasturtiums, may be lifted and potted before frost and kept alive and blooming indoors for several weeks.

SUPPLY ALWAYS KEPT UP.

If babies come down from heaven, mamma, there's one thing that's sure, I declare—There's so many babies that come down each day, There can't be bare nurseries there.

A Logical Landlord.

Many a tenant will sympathize with the man in this story, from the Philadelphia Record. He was renting a small house which the landlord had refused to repair. One day the owner came to see him.

"Jones," he said, "I shall have to raise your rent."

"What for?" asked Jones, anxiously.

"Have taxes gone up?"

"No," the landlord answered, "but I see you've painted the house and put in a new range and bathtub. That, of course, makes it worth more rent."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
